

COUNCIL ASKS RIGHT TO ELECT CITY OFFICIALS
AND BIDS FOR CONTROL OF SCHOOL DEPARTMENTPOWER TO ELECT
EIGHT DEPARTMENT
HEADS IS SOUGHT

Charter Amendment Approved by Acclamation at Meeting of City Fathers Monday Afternoon.

POPULAR REFERENDUM
ON PLAN VOTED DOWN

Officials Who Will Be Affected, If Change Is Made, Are Now Elected by the People.

A charter amendment to make city recorder, marshal, chief of construction, waterworks superintendent, electrician, chief building inspector, tax collector and city warden elective by mayor and general council instead of by the people was approved by city council Monday afternoon by acclamation and without a recorded vote.

The amendment, if adopted by the general assembly as requested by council, would largely change the complexion of the city democratic primary September 24 by taking out of the general campaign all the department heads named except the superintendent of waterworks, who does not come up for re-election until next year.

No Popular Referendum.

The change, as approved by council, is to be made without a popular referendum on it. Council voted down, also without recorded vote, a proposal by Councilman J. J. Greer to include a clause requiring approval by the people to make the change effective. Council also voted down another proposal, by Councilmen J. A. White and J. A. Beall, to make all city department heads except the chiefs of fire and police and superintendents of Grady and Battle Hill hospitals, elective by the people. That change, had it been adopted, would have made the chief of the sanitary department, the city health officer, the general manager of parks, superintendent of the city garage, city clerk and city tax assessors all run before the people, as well as the eight named in the amendment adopted who are already subject to popular election.

Favored by Committee.

The change, as voted by council, had been recommended by the charter revision committee. Its supporters contended that it costs the holders of the offices named more to make a race before the people than they receive as a year's salary if elected. Its supporters also advanced the claim that all departments could be made to work in closer harmony with each other and with the city government as a whole if their executives were elected by council.

Two-year terms for each of the eight are provided in the amendment, the same terms as are held at present. The only department heads who would be subject to election by the people, if the general assembly adopts the change, will be the city attorney, the city controller and the city treasurer, all of whom would be elected by the people, for terms of four years each.

Georgia Was Growing Even Before De Soto Arrived

Spanish chroniclers with De Soto and his mailed legions in the early expedition northeast of the tract on which now stands Atlanta reported astonishment at the progress of the native Cherokee Indians in the mechanical arts.

These aborigines had towns with as many as 500 houses, temples of substantial and symmetrical architecture, cultivated fields, well-stored barns and other evidences of material prosperity.

They were the first Georgians. They, like Georgians of this later day, loved their homes and their families. Where they settled they invested their lives wisely and the communities they established are destined forever to hold high places in Indian lore.

Few thoughts to present-day Georgians could prove more inspiring!

It is a privilege for The Atlanta Constitution to record day by day the development of a fortunate land which had begun to blossom into influence even before the coming of the White Man.

Begs Doctors for More Poison as They Work To Save Life.

After an antidote had been administered and her recovery assured, Miss Sarah Donahue, 20, of 96 Ira street, who swallowed a quantity of lysol on Monday night in an attempt to end her life, told Grady physicians that she still wanted to die.

She declared that as soon as she was released from the hospital she expected to make another attempt, hoping this time it would prove successful.

The young woman gave no reason for her rash action except to say that "life offers no hope for me, and I want to die." When physicians administered the antidotes Miss Donahue begged them to give her some more poison, the doctors stated.

Present Tribunals So Clogged With Petty Cases That Big Suits Languish to Death.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.
Washington, June 16.—Government officials here are beginning to center their attention on a growing evil which is interfering with the work of meeting out justice—the serious congestion of federal courts in all parts of the country.

As a result of disclosures being made, some of them through the senate committee investigating the department of justice, an effort will be made in the next congress to revise the federal court system, to relieve the tangle which is hampering the government and causing inconvenience and, in some cases, injustices to citizens. Officials of the department and members of congress already are giving thought to a solution.

Too Many Petty Cases.
An entirely new phase of the situation was presented Monday by Augustus T. Seymour, assistant attorney general, who appeared before the committee investigating the department. Seymour said that the congestion has been made practically impossible the effective enforcement of anti-trust laws. The department has been criticized severely before the committee for alleged delay and laxity in anti-trust suits.

The assistant attorney general declared that it was impossible to get early consideration of these cases by the federal courts because the courts had become overcrowded with petty litigation, reducing them to the "level of police courts."

He offered a solution which will be considered when revision is attempted—creation of lesser tribunals to relieve federal courts from this mass of petty suits. Senator Jones, of Washington.

McAdoo Delegates Instructed To Vote for Candidate—Not Bound To Support Rules Fight.

TELESCOPES ARE OUT

Deadlock Between McAdoo and Smith Seen as Certainty, With No Chance for Trade.

New York, June 16.—Candidates are arriving to take personal charge of their ambition to land in the white house, claims and counter-claims compete for publicity with New York's latest murder, the hotel corridors begin to bulge with the political vanguards—and out of it all emerge only two impressions of the democratic convention that can be recorded with any assurance:

1.—In its groping for the winning candidate, the democratic meeting will provide one of the most uncertain political conventions in the history of the party.

2.—From the present outlook, it will be a "compromise" convention, the nomination going to someone whose present delegate strength will place him far down the line on the initial ballots.

Prepare Place for McAdoo.
Smith and McAdoo being the outstanding candidates at present, it is natural that they should be the first upon the ground and open their preliminary drives with the most intensive. Governor Smith arrived Monday to take personal charge of his campaign. William G. McAdoo is expected Wednesday. His promoters are arranging now to make his arrival an occasion that will make a dent upon the city, a considerable task in this town.

Walter Moore, national committee man from Alabama, has arrived with his Underwood baggage; Tom Taggart from Indiana, and George Brennan from Ohio.

SAVANNAH PARTY
ARRIVES TODAY

100 Business and Professional Men Handsomely Entertained During Few Hours in City.

Arriving at Terminal station at 11:30 o'clock this morning, 100 business and professional men of Savannah, who are conducting a "jet acquainted" tour over the state, will be greeted by representatives of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, who have planned an entertainment program for the visitors while they are in the city today.

The tour is made under the auspices of the Savannah Board of Commerce, with the expressed purpose of getting Savannahians better acquainted with other Georgia cities, and selling the state port idea to other Georgians.

The party left Savannah Sunday night, headed by Mayor Paul E. Seabrook, and arrived in Augusta Monday morning. From Augusta the itinerary included Thomson, Madison, Athens and Gainesville. From Gainesville the party will proceed to Atlanta, remaining here until 2:30 a. m. Wednesday morning, when it leaves for Rome. The Savannah men are accompanied on the trip by a marine band of 20 pieces from Parris Island.

The party will be met at the station by a delegation from the chamber of commerce, headed by Secretary B. S. Barker, and a line of parade will be formed, headed by the Atlanta hosts, followed by a platoon of police and a military escort from Fort McPherson. After these will come the marine band and Savannah Board of Commerce delegation. The parade will proceed from Mitchell street to Whitehall, and from Whitehall to Peachtree, thence to Broad and Marietta and to the

New York, June 16.—New York artists who get in the front row at the democratic convention here next week are going to wonder whether the women present have been gathered for a beauty show or a political conclave.

For the democratic party, with its southern backbone, boasts innumerable democratic beauties. One of the handsomest and cleverest of the leaders of feminine democrats, Mrs. Leroy Spring, delegate-at-large from South Carolina, has come to the metropolis as one of the vanguard of democratic politicians, feminine gender, who will thrill the galleries and put a decisive finger in the presidential pie.

Mrs. Blair Both Pretty and Able.
Another southern beauty, known for her smart costumes, who has come to New York to take up the reins of her office is Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, committeewoman from Missouri, vice chairman of the democratic national committee, and official leader of the democratic women. Mrs. Blair hides proven ability beneath a petite and feminine exterior.

M'ADOO STRENGTH
ON FIRST BALLOT
ESTIMATED AT 440

Outstanding Fact at Present of Approaching Convention Is Georgian's Strength, Says Sullivan.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.
Washington, June 16.—The outstanding fact about the democratic situation is McAdoo's strength. Tom Love of Texas, who is one of the most zealous of the McAdoo managers, expressed McAdoo's strength in a sentence that sounds superlative, but is safely within accuracy. Excepting conventions where the choice was practically unanimous, like the 1916 convention that named Wilson to succeed him—excepting such cases, it is quite true, as Love says, that "no candidate ever had so many delegates as McAdoo will have and failed to get the nomination."

The McAdoo managers are claiming 495 delegates on the first roll call. That is an over-statement, but the significant fact is that it is less of an over-statement than is commonly made and commonly permitted by the generous latitude extended to campaign managers. The proportion of over-statements is barely 10 per cent, which is mild in the field where the "claim" departments of political candidates function.

Concede McAdoo 417.
The anti-McAdoo leaders concede him 417. Here again, the percentage of under-statement is close to 10 per cent. It is easy for observers close to the situation to identify the discrepancies and arrive at the fact, which is that the real McAdoo strength available on the first ballot is close to 440.

In their detailed figures by states, the McAdoo managers claim, for example, 12 from Colorado. They will have but 3. They claim 11 from Massachusetts. They will have not more than 4. They claim 33 from Self-Destruction Follows Discovery of Shortage in County Funds.

Nashville, June 16.—The suicide of W. B. Ferrell, 48, clerk in the office of the Davidson county judge here, about 2 o'clock this afternoon, was followed about two hours later by the death of his mother, Mrs. W. H. Ferrell, mother, who died as a result of the shock, physicians said.

"I'll never be able to face mother; I can't stand it," Ferrell told officials investigating a shortage in his accounts after admitting his guilt. He signed a statement explaining how county funds left in his charge had been used, and was given until 4 o'clock this afternoon to make the shortage good. He shot himself at his home shortly after the confession. The shortage has not been checked, but will not exceed $5,000, officials estimated.

BY H. H. ROBERTSON.
Chicago, Ill., June 16.—Bizarre and erotic secrets, linked with complexes that evoked physical and mental metamorphoses in Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, which are believed by their paid alienists to be hidden away partly in their subconscious selves and partly deliberately concealed, are the goal of one of the most unusual series of tests ever conducted on supposed pathological subjects.

Brought from the cells they have occupied since their incarceration for the brutal kidnapping and slaying of 13-year-old Robert Franks, the two 19-year-old intellectuals were subjected to a new kind of probe Monday by the eminent staff of mental experts retained by their multi-millionaire families. Dr. Karl Bowman, of New York and Boston, and Dr. H. S. Hubert, of Chicago, laid aside strange looking machines and surgical instruments for the day and started asking questions intended to touch the whole lives of both boys.

Leopold received the more searching examination of the two. For four hours he answered questions put to him by the two physicians. He did not tell the entire truth, according to some who were present at the examinations, and revealed to questioners something he may not have intended to show; that he has a mentality sufficient to protect himself and that he may be an inveterate liar.

Leopold admitted some of his medical legal advisors by his apparent

ATLANTA REGIMENT
GIVEN NEW NAME

Designation of New 200th Regiment, "Atlanta's Own," Is Changed to The 122nd.

BY L. O. MOSELEY.
A wave of applause and enthusiasm swept through the armory Monday night following announcement that the designation of the 200th infantry, new national guard regiment, had been changed to the 122d, the official designation of "Atlanta's Own Regiment" during the world war.

The information was conveyed to officers and men by Colonel Charles H. Cox, commanding officer, and marks the successful efforts of Colonel Cox and other officers of the regiment to have the permanent designation of the new regiment the same as that under which many score Atlantans fought during the late war.

Thus, the new regiment inherits a record of glory and brave deeds unexcelled by any organization during the world war. No page in all the list of achievements during that struggle is brighter than that which bears the record of "Atlanta's own regiment." The spirit of the regiment takes on new meanings, both to members of the regiment and to Atlantans generally. Mention of the 122d stirs anew the swell and patriotism which characterized its early existence—days when the tread and thud of marching steps resounded hourly throughout the nation.

Boasted Proud Record.
No braver troops ever forsook home and friends than those boys who marched away from Atlanta homes and followed the colors of the 122d regiment to France and on into enemy territory. The blood of no patriot ever shed greater lustre on any battlefield than the blood of Atlanta boys—members of the 122d regiment of 1917-18—many of whom made the supreme sacrifice. The colors of the

The speed of maturity of the "younger generation" was acknowledged Monday when the park department changed its definition of "child" from the age of 14 or under, as formerly, to the age of 12.

Children are admitted free to the public swimming pools, but young men and young women of 13 and 14 years henceforth will have to pay, because they are no longer children in the eyes of the city park department.

The change was made to cope with the large increase of patronage at the municipal swimming pools.

RUSSELL LEADS FIGHT TO ANNEX TERRITORY

Strip Includes 1,000 Feet on Each Side of Peachtree Road to 1,000 Feet Beyond Buckhead.

Annexation of a strip of territory extending 1,000 feet on each side of Peachtree road to 1,000 feet beyond Buckhead was voted by city council Monday afternoon, overriding recommendation made by the charter revision committee after a series of public hearings at which more than 200 Atlanta taxpayers protested against this action. An act of the general assembly, amending the city charter which fixes city limits, will be necessary to effect the annexation. No popular vote on the merger is provided.

The present city limits extend a short distance beyond the Brookwood station. The new limits would shoot them out in a pan-handle shape about three miles farther following the curves of Peachtree road in a strip 2,000 feet wide.

Council's decision was made by acclamation and without a record vote on motion of Councilman Horace Russell, author of the original annexation paper, after a warm debate between the councilman and members of the charter revision committee.

Urges Annexation.
The author of the paper, supported from the floor by Alderman J. R. Bachman, contended that expansion of the city demanded that the territory in question be annexed in order that it might be forced to pay its share of the cost of public improvements by which it will benefit.

Peachtree creek sewerage disposal plant will have to be removed from its present location within the near future, he said, primarily for the benefit of the people residing within the Peachtree road district. They should be made subject to tax to help pay for the removal he said. He contended further that the city's sewerage system would have to be expanded to serve the section.

Alderman Claude E. Buchanan, chairman of the sewers committee of council as well as a member of the charter revision committee, led the unsuccessful fight on the floor of council to kill the annexation proposal.

Sees Merger As Burden.
Alderman Buchanan asserted that, if annexed, the Peachtree road section would demand more public improvements than could be financed from additional revenue to be gained from annexation and that it would throw an unjust and unnecessary additional burden on tax payers and residents

ONLY TWO INJURED

Calloway Continues War Upon Reckless Truck Drivers in the City's Suburbs.

Only two persons were injured in automobile accidents occurring Monday, neither of these being serious.

Of the two accidents reported, police up to a late hour Monday night were unable to learn the details of one in which J. Sullivan, 25, who gave his address as the Marion hotel, claimed he was injured. Grady hospital physicians found Sullivan about 9:30 o'clock Monday night lying on the steps of the clinic, next door, in an unconscious state, with an ugly gash in the back of his head. When he had regained consciousness, the man told police officers who had been summoned, that he had been drinking, and that the car in which he was an occupant struck a tree somewhere on Peachtree street. Other details he could not remember, the man said, nor did he know who else was in the car at the time of the accident, nor how he reached the hospital.

Captain Grover C. Fain delegated a squad of officers to investigate the accident in which Sullivan claims he was injured. After treatment at the hospital, Sullivan was locked up under a charge of suspicion, pending an investigation of his case.

In the other accident reported, Miss Iona Hanson, 15-year-old daughter

PEOPLE TO VOTE
ON SCHOOL BOARD
ABOLITION PLAN

New Measure Provides for Commission of Fourteen Members Under Control of City Council.

PRESENT CITY BOARD
HIT BY HARTSFIELD

Council Refuses To Put Independent School System Proposal Before People for a Vote.

Abolition of the present board of education and restoration of the school department to control of a board elected by city council will be put to a vote of the people at a date to be fixed later in the year, it was decided by city council Monday afternoon in adopting 33 to 1 the plan of Alderman W. B. Hartsfield as amended by Councilman Harry York.

The plan, as it will go to the voters, provides for a board of 14 members, one elected by council from each of the twelve wards of the city, with the chairman of the school committee of council and the mayor acting as ex officio members. This board's expenditures would be subject to control of mayor and council insofar as it would be prohibited from making any budget or contracting any expenditure in excess of the amount appropriated to schools by council.

The amendment cannot become effective until it has first been adopted by both houses of the general assembly of Georgia and written into the city's charter, and not then until the people of Atlanta vote at the polls to make it operative. If the people refuse to approve the change, the referendum clause in the amendment automatically will repeal it and leave the law as it is at present.

Moore's Plan Defeated.
Council voted down without a record vote a motion by Councilman Wiley Moore to submit the present board of education's plan to the people at the same time with the Hartsfield plan. The board's plan calls for an increase in tax rate from $1.50 to $1.70 on each $100 of taxable property, an increase from 20 to 32 per cent of the city's total revenues as the schools' proportion, and incorporation of the school board as an entirely independent body subject to no restrictions whatever from mayor and council.

The Hartsfield plan, as amended by Councilman York, was approved by council before the school board plan was introduced, and Councilman Moore declared after the defeat of the school board proposal that he had voted for the Hartsfield plan in the belief that both were to be submitted to the people in order that they might make their choice. Several others, including Councilman Couch, said that they had been under the same impression.

Both measures were presented by

C. E. VAN WERMAN,
Meteorologist, Weather Bureau.

The charter revision committee which held a long series of public hearings on the school question. The committee had recommended adoption of the Hartfield plan and had recommended defeat of the school board plan. The recommendation of the committee was followed in both instances.

Alderman J. R. Bachman cast the deciding vote against the Hartfield plan, declaring it his belief that the public schools have made more progress under the present board of education than ever before and that he did not think a change was warranted.

Alderman Hartfield moved the adoption of his plan with a blistering denunciation of the present school board, basing his attack principally on what he called the "harmful saturnalia of expenditure in which the board has indulged for the new negro high school." He declared that the board's expenditure of the school money and its failure to observe the elementary principles of business or common sense in the ordinary operations of the schools have robbed it of the confidence of the people of Atlanta.

"If I were in fact the bitterest enemy of the school children of Atlanta," he declared, "I would ask for nothing better than to continue the present board in power because that would be the surest way of breaking down the public school system."

Wants Representative Men. The alderman declared that it was his desire to see the schools under the control of a group of men who would command the confidence of the people of Atlanta and that restoring the system of councilmanic election of school board members was the only sure way of getting such a board.

"Men like former Governor Brown, Logan Bleckley, and others who served the schools when the board was elected by council will not lower them-seives to throw their hats in the ring for a ward political battle," he asserted. "Such men, any of the best men Atlanta has, could be drafted by council, however, and if elected by council without the necessity of a political ward fight, would be willing to serve Atlanta and the children of Atlanta as members of the board of education."

The alderman predicted that the one mill tax increase for schools, submitted to a vote of the people by council at its last meeting, would not be passed because the people lack confidence in the ability of the members of the present board of education.

Hartfield's Plan. The alderman's plan, as approved by the charter revision committee, was to have a board of eight members, six of them elected from six school districts each comprising two councilmanic wards, with mayor and council school committee chairman ex-officio members. Councilman York submitted and secured passage of his amendment to retain the present system of ward representation on the ground that it was more democratic and would insure fair treatment to each ward.

Alderman Hartfield said that, while the smaller board would be able to function better and would be preferable, he would accept the amendment as a compromise in order to get the issue before the people.

MONEY PROVIDED IN FINANCE SHEET TO HELP SCHOOLS

The June finance sheet, making a $300,000 emergency appropriation to schools and slashing a number of appropriations for public improvements, was adopted by council and the aldermanic board Monday afternoon. The reported arrangement by the "low water rate bloc" in council to obstruct its passage by a series of motions to reconsider failed to develop.

Councilman Harry York, who had filed notice of a motion to reconsider at the last meeting, cast the only negative vote.

The only improvement definitely abandoned entirely in the June sheet was the removal of the city stockade from the present site facing the girls' high school. It may be removed early next year, council members stated.

REQUEST TO STOP CITY ROCK QUARRY BLASTING REFUSED

City council Monday refused to grant the request of the architects to the new girls' high school to stop blasting at the city rock quarry near the school. Supervising Architect A. Ten Eyck Brown and Project Architects Edwards and Sayward sent letters to council declaring that the blasting threatened permanent injury to the foundations of the school, which rest on the same strata of rock on which the construction department is now blasting.

Chief of Construction W. A. Hansell told council that only small charges were being exploded in the blasting and that he did not think it would hurt the school building. He said the city had no money to buy rock for street repairs if the stockade quarry were closed.

Council referred the questions to the city board of consulting engineers for investigation and blasting will continue at least until the next session of council.

HIGHEST PREMIUM ON RECORD PAID FOR STREET BONDS

The highest premium paid for city of Atlanta street improvement bonds in recent years was accepted by city council Monday in approving sale to the Hibernia Securities company of $164,000 of bonds for $168,542. Hibernia was the highest bidder when the bonds were offered for sale. City Controller B. Graham West said the price established a new record.

TURN DOWN PLAN TO REQUIRE PARKS IN SUBDIVISIONS

Council Monday refused to require land development companies to set aside 10 per cent of all new residence subdivisions for park purposes, tabling the J. A. White park ordinance by vote of 15 to 12. The charter revision committee had approved the proposal, but the park committee had approved it prior to council's adverse action.

TWO-THIRDS VOTE ON ZONE CHANGES NOW SUFFICIENT

Council voted Monday to give itself the right to make changes in the city zone law by two-thirds vote, instead of three-fourths vote as at present. A change from residence to apartment house restrictions for Bonaventure, Ponce de Leon and Blue Ridge was approved under the three-fourths rule.

A change from residence to business for the strip bounded by La France and the Georgia railroad was denied, overriding ordinance committee and planning commission recommendations.

within present incorporated limits of the city.

"In its present financial condition," Alderman Buchanan declared, "Atlanta cannot afford to extend police, sanitary, sewerage, fire, school and other city service to this part of the county."

"Every new sewer laid there will mean that some community now within the city will have to go without a new sewer, every policeman assigned there will mean that much less protection for the people residing in the present city limits and taking the schools in that section out of the control of the county board and placing them in the city system will mean that much more to be added to the school deficit if the present school program is continued."

City Making Profit. The territory affected brought out further, is now paying a substantial profit to the city of Atlanta for the water service it receives from the city.

The water rate paid by city residents, according to estimates by Alderman Bachman, chairman of the finance committee, pays all costs of operation and improvement of service, including interest and sinking funds on all outstanding bonds and enough to cover all depreciation.

The residents of the Peachtree road district pay double the amount charged city residents, all the excess being profit to the city. If annexed, they would pay the same rate as city consumers, or half what they are now paying.

Had Opposed Annexation. Council at an earlier meeting this year had voted down two other annexation plans, one taking in all the territory along Peachtree road included in the plan approved Monday and several square miles in addition and another proposal to annex the Druid Hills territory.

Councilman Russell said the new plan included for the most part territory that already has been improved and developed and was not subject to the same criticism as the first one, which included a great deal of undeveloped land.

Councilman Russell said that he had no idea as to how many people reside in the Peachtree road strip or its taxable value.

WALKER OUTLINES PLATFORM IN TALK

Athens, Ga., June 16.—(Special.) Governor Clifford Walker, himself wearing the Phi Beta Kappa key, delivered the annual oration before the fraternity here at 6 o'clock Monday afternoon, having in his audience seniors of the university, many visitors here for commencement, members of the board of trustees and the 100 members of the Savannah port party that is touring the state.

Exceptional interest was manifested in Governor Walker's speech, inasmuch as he had stated privately that it contained the broad outlines of the platform on which he would go to the voters this fall seeking reelection, as well as bearing something in the nature of a report on his handling of the state's affairs during his administration as governor.

The speech was devoted, mainly, to a plea for better school and college facilities for the state; for permanent, 12-month highways all over the state, and for better conditions of public health.

The governor, however, linked with these needs the need for a revision of the tax system of the state, a policy which he advocated with all the resources at his command during both sessions of the legislature in 1923, and which it is believed he will also support during the coming summer session.

"Antiquated Tax System." "I would not say that, in my judgment, the people of the state will not authorize the expenditure of funds necessary in this program until the present antiquated and unjust tax system is replaced by a system which will distribute the burden of government upon all the classes of people and property fairly," said the governor. "The limitation of this hour will not permit a discussion of the tax problems of the state, but I will be permitted to say with all the earnestness I can command, that every hope for a greater Georgia is a challenge to the concentrated service in securing passage of tax laws which will distribute the expenses of government upon intangible as well as on tangible property, and bring to the tax books all classes of properties which hitherto have been escaping taxation."

Referring to the crowded conditions of the colleges and university of the state, as well as the high schools, and the woeful lack of adequate funds for their enlargement, equipment and maintenance, the governor said:

"We must not be blind to the fact that the inspiring and uplifting agencies of the state are seriously in need; that some of them are all but gasping for the very breath of life; that everyone of our institutions are suffering from 'growing pains,' and that before we ever approximate the realization of the vision of our fathers, we must double the size and quadruple the facilities and equipment of the state institutions, to which we look for the training of the thousands of youths who follow after us."

People Must Think Straight. "It is by the education of our people that we will live up to the ideals of our fathers. Drive out ignorance, superstition and prejudice. Train the people to think straight and they will treat their neighbors justly, and more, they will not rest until their neighbors treat their neighbors justly, and all nations share in the common blessings of freedom. If we train the people to think straight, then bolshevism and radicalism will vanish."

"The enactment of such proposed reform, the realization of our hopes for a greater state, will await the crystallization of a better spirit in Georgia—a spirit of fraternity, of cooperation, of unselfish service."

"There has been too much division within our borders. Factionalism has saddled heavy penalties on our beloved state at large. For twenty years, a destructive rather than a constructive spirit, a spirit of blocking rather than a spirit of building, has held sway in political Georgia. As a result, Georgia, and not Georgia good, has been advertised to the world, and so as the years have gone by we have spent our time on personal and factional bickerings while unjust laws, mud roads, antiquated schools, and poorly-equipped colleges have held us back as other states have gone forward in enterprise and progress."

In conclusion, he said: "Let the dead past bury its dead; fight free from the slough of despond of the past four years, join hands as patriots of peace in a fight for the final realization of the vision of the fathers through a program of better schools, better colleges, better highways, better health, better homes and better churches."

FOUR MEN TARRER IN LONELY CANYON

Santa Ana, Calif., June 16.—Four men are believed to have been tarred and feathered in Santa Ana canyon, near here, Saturday night, according to Ed. McClellan, chief criminal investigator for the sheriff's office. One of them at least is believed to have been a member of the I. W. W., from San Pedro.

McClellan said he had been told by a gasoline service station operator that a party of more than 300 men in automobiles passed up the canyon about 11 o'clock Saturday night.

Following the trail indicated by this man, McClellan says he came to a spot in the woods where parts of four outfits of clothing were lying about among loose feathers, while close by was one five-gallon tar container, empty, a second partly filled and two tar brushes.

He found an I. W. W. membership card, dated San Pedro, and a hat with a San Pedro trade mark on the band.

McClellan declared his find led him to believe that the reports of kidnapping of four men during the riot at the I. W. W. hall at San Pedro Saturday night were correct.

CERTIORARI IS DENIED BEAVERS IN 1923 CASE

Following the state court of appeals decision Monday, reversing the ruling of the Fulton superior court in granting a certiorari to James L. Beavers, former Atlanta chief of police, in his fight to prevent the 1923 police committee from ousting him on charges of inefficiency, George Spence, representing the former chief, declared that this decision was on a "dead issue," and has no bearing whatsoever on litigation now pending between his client and the 1923 committee.

The court held that the "judgment" of the committee against which Beavers sought the certiorari was not final and was in effect, merely a statement of charges against the chief, to which he was expected to answer at a later hearing. The appellate court held that certiorari can only be brought on final judgment of the committee, therefore the certiorari sought at that time was premature.

The statement which was issued by the 1923 police committee, Jesse Armistead, chairman, charged that Chief Beavers was inefficient and incompetent to hold the office and removed him from his post.

Sam C. Crane, attorney for Armistead, said: "The court of appeals in handing down its decision in the case of Armistead vs. Beavers has settled the issues finally on the validity of the proceedings brought by the 1923 police committee against Beavers."

"This decision followed the opinion in the case of Beavers vs. Armistead et al handed down by the supreme court, in Beavers case as reported in the 156th Georgia report, 'the prohibition case,' wherein Beavers attempted to prohibit his trial by the 1923 police committee."

The statutory judgment and proceedings in the case were sustained by both courts, supreme and court of appeals, the 1923 police committee being fully sustained in law in the case."

DISABLED HEROES INVITED TO MEET HERE NEXT YEAR

An effort will be made to bring the 1925 annual convention of Disabled Veterans of the World war to Atlanta by the four delegates who are leaving at 8:45 o'clock this morning for the 1924 meeting at Salt Lake City, Utah, which opens next Monday. W. C. Joiner, fifth district liaison officer, of Atlanta, will represent the state of Georgia and with him will be Frank E. Mitchell, of Athens, alternate delegate and also representative of the Joe Brown Conally chapter of Athens. The Woodrow Wilson chapter No. 1, of Atlanta, will be represented by J. C. Curley and H. J. Felker.

The party from Georgia is leaving with instructions to ask for the convention next year, and is carrying a cordial invitation, signed by Governor Clifford Walker, Mayor Walter Sims, F. J. Paxson, president of the Atlanta convention bureau; James F. deJarnette, president of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association, and A. B. Moody, president of the Georgia Hotel Men's association.

$215,000 Is Paid By Atlanta Company For Hatton Shoals

Announcement was made Monday that the Washington Land company, of Atlanta, which is affiliated with the Georgia Railway and Power company, had purchased from the H. H. McRae company property in the Savannah river known as Hatton shoals, located partly in Anderson county, South Carolina, and partly in Hart county, Georgia. The consideration was $215,000.

No immediate development of this property is planned, power company officials stated Monday. It was purchased merely as a part of a general program for development of the water-power resources of the state, and undoubtedly will be used for development of hydro-electric power at some future date.

EXAMINER IS ASKED FOR "COSMETICIANS"

When the state legislature meets on June 25, one of the problems it will face will be the issue as to whether a "cosmetician" shall be included as a member of the state board of barber examiners.

The association of cosmeticians has asked Assistant Attorney General R. Gress to prepare a bill for this purpose. It is claimed that when the general public seeks the services of a "cosmetician," they have a right to expect service by a qualified, duly licensed and approved expert. It is pointed out that disastrous results to the individual might easily follow the ministrations of an amateur "cosmetician."

What is a cosmetician? Why, it is one of those people who work in beauty parlors. They take the wrinkles out of old faces, restore youth to the aged, add beauty to the beautiful and add to the already large number of bobbed haired nurses and grandmothers.

CONTRACT IS SIGNED FOR GWINNETT ROAD

Contract for the paving, with penetration macadam, of the section of the Lawrenceville-Atlanta highway in Gwinnett county, was made Monday between the state highway department and the county of Gwinnett. Under the arrangement made, the road, 16.4 miles in length, will be paved this year, the county to furnish the labor and the state department to furnish the material.

A similar contract has been arranged with DeKalb county, whereby the paving of half of the balance of unfinished road on this highway is to be completed this year, and the rest next year. There is, however, a possibility, it is stated, that DeKalb will be able to complete the entire project this year, if their funds allow. The unpaved stretch in DeKalb is eight miles in length.

When these two projects are completed, it will provide a hard-surfaced road all the way from Atlanta to Lawrenceville.

Adopted in Other Counties. Similar arrangements have been made between the state department and various counties in recent weeks, with the result that important projects included in the program of the proposed state highway system have been begun this year, which could not have been begun last year if this plan of construction had not been adopted. The suggestion that the plan be adopted was made about a year ago by Editor Charles E. Brown, of the Corvée Dispatch, and the highway officials of the state give him full credit for that suggestion.

Among projects which are being constructed under this plan, in addition to the Gwinnett and DeKalb county undertakings, are the following:

Bartow County—Four miles of road running south from Cartersville.

Cobb County—Three miles of road running north from Marietta.

Coweta County—Eight and a half miles of road between Palmetto and Newnan.

Clayton County—The highway from the Fulton county line through Jonesboro. This is on the main Atlanta-Macon highway.

Ben Hill County—From the city of Fitzgerald to the Wilcox county line.

Projects in Many Counties. Crisp County—From the Dooly county line to the Turner county line, passing through Cordale.

Rockdale County—From Tallulah Falls to the North Carolina line.

Habersham County—From Demorest to Clarksville.

Clarke County—Four miles, from the end of the paving of the city of Athens, to the Oconee county line. This is on state highway route No. 8 to Atlanta.

Besides these, other contracts have been made, all for hard surfaced highways and a large number of chert and gravel road projects.

VETOES OF SIMS ARE SUSTAINED BY CITY COUNCIL

Mayor Walter Sims was sustained in the two vetoes he sent to council Monday afternoon. He had vetoed the Duval ordinance requiring "Standing Room Only" signs to be placed in front of theaters when all seats were taken and the Armistead ordinance calling for inflexible abstinence in the first floor in the downtown section.

LOCAL KIWANIS HOLD CELEBRATION AT EAST LAKE CLUB

National Kiwanis night was observed by the local Kiwanians at a special meeting held at East Lake Country club at 7:30 o'clock Monday night.

W. W. Orr, president of the George Muse Clothing company, opened the 15-minute services with a prayer. Arthur Brooke, president of the local club, made a 10-minute address, followed by the singing of "America," "God Save the King" and the national Kiwanis song.

Following the dinner and short service, a special orchestra rendered music for a dance, which lasted until midnight.

PRETTY WEATHER, POSSIBLE SHOWERS, FORECAST TODAY

Weather forecast for today is for a fair day with possible thunder-showers. The temperature for the next three or four days is expected to remain about the same, between 85 and 90 degrees as the maximum heat for the day.

People who reside in the northern section of Atlanta will be incredulous, perhaps, at the statement that no rain has been recorded at the local office of the U. S. Weather bureau for Sunday, Sunday night or Monday. A heavy shower fell early Monday morning, but it was confined to a small section. At the Atlanta Trust building, where the recording instruments are located, the fall was so light as not even to justify recording as "a trace."

The rainfall for the year, to date, is a little below normal, caused by the light fall of the early months of the year. The early days of June and the latter part of May so far are above the normal rainfall, but not sufficient to offset the dryness which had preceded it.

EDGAR L. BROTHERTON TO REST IN OAKLAND

Funeral services will be held here Wednesday for Edgar L. Brotherton, 45, who died Sunday morning after a brief illness at St. Louis, where he has made his home for the past eight years. The body will arrive Tuesday night, and services will be conducted at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the residence of his sister, Mrs. G. I. Walker, 24 Copenhill avenue, Dr. S. R. Belk, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, officiating. Interment will be in Oakland.

Mr. Brotherton was born in Atlanta and was a graduate of Emory university, being a member of the S. A. E. fraternity. At the time of his death he was president of the National Creditors' Publicity association. He was the son of Captain W. H. Brotherton.

Mr. Brotherton leaves four brothers, Frank M., William M., Charles H. and Harold P. Brotherton, and three sisters, Mrs. W. F. Gilliam, Mrs. G. I. Walker, and Mrs. John M. Berry, of Rome.

NEW CIVIC WORKERS WILL HOLD LUNCHEON

Atlanta's new civic club will entertain with a luncheon at the Kim ball house at 12:15 o'clock today. Special music has been arranged, including selections by the Junior Chamber of Commerce orchestra.

WOMEN WILL DISCUSS LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

The summer legislative program for the League of Women Voters will be discussed at a meeting of the Eighth Ward league at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Curry Tiffin Kedei, the new oriental lunch shop at Twelfth and Peachtree streets. The league members will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Palmer, proprietors of the lunch shop, who have recently come to Atlanta from India.

Mrs. Sanford Gay, president of the Atlanta league and chairman of the legislation for the Georgia league, will present the legislative program for the next three months. Mrs. R. L. Turman, chairman of efficiency in government, will speak briefly on registering and voting.

Mrs. B. M. Boykin, chairman of the Eighth Ward league, urges all members, especially new ones, to attend this meeting, as it will be the last before the members scatter for the summer.

The city democratic committee and the primary to be held here September 24 will be the subject of a brief talk by Mrs. H. A. Etheridge, a member of the committee. The state committee and state primary will be discussed by Mrs. William B. Taylor.

At the conclusion of the program financial plans will be discussed and volunteers called for to serve on the various league committees through the summer.

SLASH IN GASOLINE PRICE IS PREDICTED

Rumors were persistent Monday to the effect that a slash of at least two cents per gallon in gasoline prices would be announced within the next two days. Although officials of big producing and distributing companies in this city failed to confirm the report it was hinted in certain quarters that the predicted drop in price "has been expected."

A cut of two cents a gallon in New Orleans, effective Monday, is believed to be the forerunner of similar drops in other cities in southern states.

Officials of the Standard, Gulf, Pan-America, Reed and Texas companies were asked to confirm the report, but in each instance a definite answer could not be obtained.

LACOCHE POSTOFFICE DESTROYED BY BLAZE

The postoffice building at Lacooche, Fla., was destroyed by fire which began at noon Sunday, according to a telegram received Monday morning by Joe P. Johnston, head of the postoffice inspectors for Georgia. The postoffice is rated as fourth class. Mr. Johnston stated. No details were received.

Solons Will Be Asked To Act on Amendment To U. S. Constitution

One of the first questions to come before the state legislature when it convenes on June 25 will be that of ratification of an amendment to the federal constitution, proposed in a joint resolution passed by both houses of congress in Washington on June 2. The proposed amendment would give congress power to limit, regulate and prohibit employment at labor of all persons under 18 years of age. A certified copy of the proposed amendment has been received at the office of the governor from Secretary of State Charles R. Hughes and will be presented to the legislature for action soon after it convenes.

BENEFIT RECITAL TO RAISE FUNDS FOR GIRLS' CLUB

Pupils of Miss Anne Agricola, and Miss Rosina Asmurs, will give a recital at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at Marist college hall, corner of Peachtree and Ivy streets. In addition to interpretative dancing numbers, and musical selections, there will be several readings.

This recital is given for the benefit of the Immaculate Conception Girls' club, which is conducting a drive to raise funds for building a new club house.

J. D. PRICE.

ive committee to qualify for the primary this fall. He is a candidate to succeed himself as a member of the commission.

Mr. Price is now serving his first six-year term on this body and is seeking the endorsement of the voters, through a second term, for the work he has accomplished as a commissioner. He formally announced his candidacy to succeed himself several weeks ago.

Well Known in Georgia.

There are few figures in Georgia, political life better known than Commissioner Price. He has held a number of public offices and is one of the most popular men who ever offered himself as a servant of the state.

He was born in Oconee county and was raised on a farm. Probably as a result of this, he has always had the interests of the farmers of the state peculiarly at heart and has introduced and sponsored many movements designed for their benefit. He served several terms in the general assembly, having been elected to represent his home county and district in both upper and lower houses.

Mr. Price was at one time state commissioner of agriculture, where his practical experience as a farmer proved of great value to the agricultural interests of the state.

Woodruff Only Opponent.

Only one other candidate to date has qualified for the race in opposition to Mr. Price. A. J. Woodruff, representative in the house for DeKalb county, having paid his fee some two weeks ago. Calvin Parker, of Ware county, also a member of the state legislature, has been mentioned as a possible candidate, but he has not qualified for the race by payment of his entry fee.

NEW SOUTHERN BELL PRESIDENT IN CHARGE

Ben S. Read, president of the Southern Bell and Cumberland Telephone companies, reached Atlanta Monday afternoon and night at Brookhaven Country club. Indications point to an unusually large attendance. Practically all the members will close their places of business at 1 o'clock in order to give employees an opportunity to attend.

Frederick H. Reid, former vice president of these companies, will leave Atlanta Wednesday for Denver, where he will be located in future as president of the Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph company.

The new Southern Bell president, is a native of Carthage, Tenn., and the greater part of his thirty-four years' service with the Bell system was spent in the south.

Mr. Read's first day in his new office was spent in greeting officials and his friends. He was extended a warm welcome and expressed his delight at returning to the south particularly as chief executive of the organization with which he began his telephone career.

"The south," he said, "is making wonderful strides. I have been amazed each year, when I take by vacation trip to Carthage, to note evidences of continued progress."

"The growth of such cities as Atlanta, New Orleans, Louisville, Birmingham, Memphis, Jacksonville and dozens of others I could mention has been remarkable, and there seems to be no indication of a let up."

Mr. Read's attractive family, consisting of Mrs. Read and two sons, will spend the summer at Carthage. Later they will join him here and make their permanent home in Atlanta.

ATLANTA AUTO MEN TO ENJOY ANNUAL OUTING WEDNESDAY

JURY MUST DECIDE RAILROAD'S CLAIM IN BANK FAILURE

The case of John S. Williams, receiver, against T. R. Bennett, state superintendent of banking, must be tried in the Richmond superior court on its merits, according to a decision handed down by the state supreme court Monday. The decision reversed the lower court, which sustained a demurrer by the superintendent.

The Georgia and Florida railroad had deposited with the Merchants bank of Augusta, $388,000 when the bank failed. The state banking superintendent, in taking over the bank, held that this amount should be considered as any other deposit, while the receiver contended that the funds

WOMAN'S BODY RECOVERED

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 16.—The body of a woman lodged on a rock near the Cave of the Winds, after going over the falls, was recovered this afternoon. Workmen placed a ladder over the rocks and one of them crawled out and lashed the body to the ladder where it later was picked up by a steamer. The body was that of a woman about 55 years of age with gray hair.

COOK GETS MAD, CLEARS OUT KITCHEN

Slays Everything In Sight And Gloats Over the Gruesome Deed.

"Our cook got in a rage yesterday and went on a rampage that threatened to turn the house upside down," said a well-known club woman to a friend she met while downtown shopping.

"We were all quite excited about it, but I'm glad it happened, now that it is all over, for I'm sure we won't have any more trouble like we had before. We had just hired her, and when she went in the kitchen to get dinner she complained that the place was overrun with roaches and water bugs. She said the last cook was simply a well, I won't tell you what she said, but she called up the druggist and had a bottle of Fly-Flu sent out and soon cleared out every one of the pests. Oh, yes; it is sure death to all sorts of insects, moths, roaches, flies, mosquitoes and bedbugs, too."

You can get Fly-Flu at drug, grocery and other retail stores. It acts like magic if you follow the directions carefully. Substitutes can't and won't do the work. Fly-Flu also kills moths (and their eggs). It is harmless to humans, leaves no unpleasant odor, cannot possibly stain, and has 55 uses in every home.—(adv.)

AS TO HIGHWAY BONDS.

On this page is a communication from C. D. Shellnut, of Sandersville, relative to a proposed state bond issue for completing the present state-adopted highway program; and also another communication from Martin Amorous, of Marietta, on the same subject.

Mr. Amorous repeats the same argument contained in a former communication in opposition to bonds; and Mr. Shellnut is evidently afraid that by some upheaval of conditions in the future, not foreseen and not now anticipated, the retirement of the bonds, if issued, may have to fall back upon an ad valorem or property tax.

If the world stops in its progress to anticipate all kinds of dire and distressing sequences and consequences that may develop as a result of every advanced and aggressive movement, it will not only stand still on the spot on which it stops, but in the loss of momentum will necessarily start backward.

If an individual permits himself to imagine that the grim reaper is stalking at the door-stoop, or that the mind is becoming weakened, or that "the goblins are coming," the individual is not only a miserable failure in mind, body and soul, but a stumbling-block to others who are moving forward.

The history of this nation is a history of building. And the history of our progress in building is the history of our ever-increasing faith.

What reason is there to assume that the economic affairs of Georgia will undergo in the next 25 years such a revolution—such a cataclysm of eruptions and changes—that there will be no automobiles and no gasoline, and all that sort of thing? If a life digression from the part of progress should come we would either be in such a quagmire of depression that we would need no roads; or we would be in that happy millennium when we would all be flying around like angels of peace and purity and too supremely happy to care about a matter of taxes.

Seriously, it is no argument to conjure up forbidding possibilities that are neither reasonable nor in the slightest sense possible.

The proposition in Georgia today is to issue bonds in only such an amount that the incoming gas and vehicular special taxes—already imposed—may carry and retire, the proceeds from which shall be used to complete, at the earliest practicable moment, the state-wide system of paved highways, already accepted by the assembly, but which will be fifty years in completing at the present rate of progress.

Indeed, which can never be completed at the present rate of progress, for the good and unchallengeable reason that the time will shortly be reached, with the character of roads now being built, that the system will go down as fast as added to, thus accomplishing nothing in annual net results.

That is obvious to any person who thinks understandingly in this matter.

Again, it must be remembered that any amendment proposing a bond issue for highways will provide, in the written law, that the interest and sinking funds shall be created only from the state's annually increasing gasoline and vehicular taxes, which amounts, at rates now imposed, to a gross of nearly $6,000,000 a year—a sum sufficiently large to safeguard bonds to a reasonable amount, but not large enough to complete a state highway system, as proposed, within the lives of the living.

When these facts are taken into consideration, coupled with the further fact that the state of Georgia is inhibited by the constitution from levying more than a 5-mill property tax—the smallest and lightest burden of our tax system—it is easily understood that it is not possible to throw the weight of a state bond issue upon the state's ad valorem system.

Again, in this whole proposition two features stand out with unmistakable clearness—

First, that the people of the cities pay 80 per cent of the present special taxes through vehicular taxes and gasoline consumption.

They as a rule have paved highways in their local communities, for the larger and wealthier counties have already bonded themselves and paved their county-line-to-county-line roads.

These are the people who will carry and retire the bonds; and for what? For building highways through the country counties of Georgia.

Then why should country counties object?

Second, considering that the carrying and retirement of bonds for highways fall entirely upon automobile owners, as demonstrated, why should the great multitude of voters who do not own automobiles and thus do not enter into the payment of the special taxes already imposed, but who will be, with every person, materially benefited by highway development, object to the automobile owner paying for a completed state system?

On what good ground do these people object?

Look at North Carolina again! The bonds in that state are being carried by the gasoline and vehicular taxes, and as enormous as is the sum total of the various issues, the retirement fund is today several years ahead of the calculations. In the meantime, the material wealth of North Carolina has been doubled and she is leading a procession that Georgia at present cannot so much as qualify in. Yet, Georgia is paying the same gasoline tax today that North Carolina is paying. North Carolina has roads; Georgia has not, in the same comparison.

The Constitution has repeatedly expressed its advocacy of a state bond issue for better highways and schools—the needs of both of which are pressing. It is not in favor of a bond issue for roads that does not equitably provide for school necessities.

It is not fair, however, to defeat a great progressive movement by dreamings of hob-goblins, or by listening to those who will contribute nothing to the furtherance of such a movement.

THE REPUBLICAN POLICY.

Harry M. McWhorter, of Madison, a white republican, defends the action of the republican national committee and subsequently the Cleveland convention in seating the Henry Lincoln Johnson delegation from Georgia instead of the "illy white," or Phillips delegation.

Mr. McWhorter argues the case from the viewpoint of the Johnson faction.

But back of it all the one fact stands out that the national republican party simply prefers the negro votes in the doubtful states to the white votes in the south.

That is all there is to it; and so long as that is the republican attitude, it is futile to talk about building up a republican party, other than a patronage-holding skeleton, in the southern states.

The republicans have made their choice. The whites of the south will make theirs accordingly.

WELCOME, SAVANNAHANS!

One hundred and twenty-five leading business and professional men of Savannah will reach Atlanta today to meet the business and professional men of this city.

It is a get-together movement—with no definite purpose other than to show a spirit of cooperation in the one, big outstanding issue that ought to be uppermost in every Georgian's mind and heart, the material development of the entire state.

When a chain of "Georgia first" links all cities and towns and all the counties and rural sections of the state into one indissoluble band of good fellowship, cooperation, coordination, public spirit, business aggressiveness, then Georgia will begin to move forward to a new place of importance in the south and the "Empire State of the South" will no longer be a misnomer.

There has been too much sectional feeling, too much rivalry, too much jealousy in the past.

Atlanta welcomes its port city delegates and assures them a full and understanding cooperation in every forward-looking undertaking.

The Drowsy Day.
The river looks too sleepy
To rise and run away;
You miss the song-bird's music
Throughout the dreamy day.
For it's dream-time, dream-time,
"Money is quiet," and it must be;
With hills, and vales, and streams,
And deep in the shadows
The world is with the dreams.

The fields of the toilers
Are sleeping in the sun;
Who knows but they are dreaming
Of gates of harvest won?

For it's dream-time, it's dream-time,
And all so silent seems;
You miss the great world's breathing—
The world that's with the dreams.

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE INSIDE.

We are all that we are because of what is inside of us.

I met a man the other day whose smile fascinated me. It seemed as though a bright sun had broken through just the moment that he smiled. I wanted to find out all about that man. I wanted to see where he lived, what he did, and learn all about who he was.

I found that everyone had a good word for him. He was well liked by all, and a splendid success in business.

Hundreds of years ago Plato taught that beauty was within and that as a man thought, so did he become. If he thought beautiful thoughts, he was a beautiful man.

In my little bedroom hangs a wonderful picture of Lincoln, taken just about the time he was nominated for the presidency. It is a face of lines and sunken places. The eyes are deep set in their sockets. It is anything but a face that would take a prize at a beauty show.

But the more I look at it, the more I grow to love it, and before long you find yourself saying that it is the most beautiful face you have ever seen.

It became there was a wonderful soul inside that kept streaming out. Before you misjudge anyone, you had better take a little walk inside of his heart and see what you find.

We are a friend to what we find inside.

Fine clothes, cultivated manners, distinguished bearing, are mere coverings. The life and substance of all character lies very deep within. It is from the inside that all personality radiates.

If you are right within, you need not worry about what is on the outside. Your worth will take care of everything.

Just In Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

Dispatches of Sunday, from New York, state that managers and leaders of one of the avowed candidates for the democratic presidential nomination, reaching the convention city, are preparing to try to break down, by a majority vote of the delegates, the time-honored and traditional "two-thirds rule," that is as old as the democratic party itself, in order to assure the nomination of their candidate by a majority.

This is unthinkable. However sincerely in earnest Mr. McAdoo may be in wanting the nomination to appease an ambition, and in wanting to be president in order to serve his country, it is not conceivable that he would personally advocate a purely selfish move that would not only come nearer wrecking the democratic party than anything it could do, but strike at its very foundation, and at the most sacred clause in its confession of faith—the rights of all the people, of all the separate states as against the possible minority combinations of special interests and groups.

Mr. McAdoo has suffered much at the hands of alleged friends—in Georgia, to illustrate, when he issued a pronouncement against secret, chamber proceedings in Chicago almost at the very moment that a secret cabal in Atlanta was insulting and disregarding thousands of his real friends throughout the state by methods in naming convention delegates which the state democratic committee quickly thereafter officially frowned upon, and adopted a rule prohibiting such methods in the future.

And now, on the eve of the national convention, being a potential presidential candidate as he is, his "managers and leaders," as claimed in press dispatches, are trying to fasten upon him a personal stigma that he could not outlive, if a party to it, if he should by good fortune become a centurion.

In justice to him, it is only fair to assume that he will repudiate any such tactics, the only possible incentive for which would be to secure a nomination in defiance of time-honored party principles, and by a scheme wholly unworthy of upstanding statesmanship.

The campaign of 1832 marked the beginning in this country of multiple party strife, and for the first time all candidates were convention nominees. The anti-Masonic party convened at Philadelphia in September, 1830, and a year later reassembled at Baltimore. There was no platform.

The national republicans or whigs assembled at Baltimore December 12, 1831, and in May, 1832, prepared the first party platform.

The national democratic convention assembled at Baltimore May 21, 1832, and here the two-thirds rule vote was adopted. There was no platform.

Calhoun was at odds with Jackson in the first administration with Van Buren on the side of Jackson as a party to the controversy. This eliminated Calhoun, and Van Buren became vice president in the second administration.

The two-thirds rule has prevailed ever since then, and is as old as is the history of democratic conventions in America. It was put there by Andrew Jackson, the father of representative democracy, as adhered to and lived by the party of that name. Andrew Jackson demanded it as an offset to minority, secret chamber manipulations, and as an exemplification of that broad representative voice of the people for which the democratic party stands.

But for that rule Woodrow Wilson—the father-in-law of Mr. McAdoo—could not have been the party nominee in 1912, and therefore would not have been president. It will be recalled that Champ Clark, of Missouri, received more than a majority before the break to Wilson began. Champ Clark went down in convention defeat, and ten thousand times would he rather have been defeated than to have had the nomination by any abrogation of democratic rules and democratic policies.

It has been said that the republicans nominate by a majority rule, why not the democrats?

The very principle that makes the two-thirds rule a democratic policy is the answer. The republicans are federalists. The democrats are states-rights advocates. The republicans advocate centralization. The democrats advocate state autonomy and local self-government. The convention representatives are different. The methods of choosing delegates are different. They stand for different things—just as Alexander Hamilton stood for one principle, and Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson for another.

To abrogate the two-thirds rule, in the interest of Mr. McAdoo, or Mr. Anybody Else, can only mean the personal ruin, in popular esteem of the candidate, if a party to it, and the absolute destruction of the democratic faith of time honored tradition and voice. No doubt Mr. McAdoo will himself put a crimp into any such misguided zeal on the part of his lieutenants.

The mails are full of propaganda for some of the prospective "dark horse" candidates for the democratic presidential nomination. Leaflets reaching Atlanta Monday carry the striking headline, "Nominate for president at New York Charles W. Bryan, governor of Nebraska." Among many other things this leaflet says:

"As publisher and associate editor of 'The Commoner' of twenty-two years and as business agent for his brother, William Jennings Bryan, Governor Bryan has planned progressive democratic legislation, municipal, state and national and has organized and directed the activities of the progressive forces of the United States, men and women, and participated in the preparation and advocated practically all progressive legislation, state and national, that has been put upon the statute books during the past twenty-five years.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Giddap!
It is recorded in Plutarch that the senators of ancient Rome journeyed into the country one day to offer the consulship to Seneca. They found the patrician statesman walking behind the plow, bareheaded and barefooted. Some politicians in the United States paid a visit to President Coolidge's ancestral home at Plymouth, Vermont, to invite the elder Coolidge to attend the Cleveland convention. He told them he was too busy harrowing and could not get away. The elder Coolidge also told his visitors that he always knew Cal was a good boy. In fact it did not surprise him in the least that the people of the United States had elected a man who was a good boy.

"Giddap! See you later, gentlemen."

I. W. W.'s Are Out of Place.
Industrial Workers of the World, members of a syndicalist organization with little influence, threaten to blow up the morgue in which the bodies are housed of the United States sailors who perished on the Mississippi. This in retaliation for a mob attack on the United States navy yard at New Orleans, to destroy a hall will not kill the radical idea and to blow up dead bodies will not bring the revolution one day nearer.

At any rate there will possibly be some interesting developments at New York and what Cleveland lacked in a thrill to visitors in the first three days may be more than overcome the first day or two in New York.

One thing is sure. There is no real indication that the convention will nominate a pronounced "wet," and people who are apprehensive of that may as well rest contentedly.

They took too much for granted who assumed that Samuel Gompers spoke with the voice of labor, in labor's totality, when he demanded liquor for the working man. There must be millions of members of organized labor in all crafts who do not agree with him. Indeed, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, as an organization, recently replied in scathing terms to the suggestion that it aid in the attack on prohibition.

The brotherhood is, perhaps, as representative of labor opinions on prohibition as is Mr. Gompers. Certainly it is representative of its own organization, one of the strongest and most responsible units in American industry.

John Gordon Cooper, member of congress from Ohio, is a member of the brotherhood. He asserts that railroad men have learned their lesson thoroughly. "We men in the railroad game," said Representative Cooper, "know that the eighteenth amendment has been the greatest blessing we ever received; we know that we are better off morally, financially, intellectually, and in every other way by the outlawing of the booze business."

What these craftsmen know is commonly known. Denial of that knowledge by the liquor interests, or by men who stubbornly refuse to admit the truth, has no special significance. There was pathos discernible in such old songs as "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" and "O Father, Dear Father, Come Home With Me Now," but there were pathos and truth as well.

A great many boys were wandering in the days of the saloon, and thousands upon thousands of fathers were lingering at a sloppy bar, drinking up the pay check, when the clock on the corner struck twelve.

The evils of liquor attacked men in all walks of life, but since this discussion pertains to labor, let it here be said that the lot of the average laborer and of his family was not a happy one in those times.

Poverty visited his home, and charity came to relieve poverty, and many laborers looked and acted as though life had abused them and theirs.

Few of them owned their homes and none of them knew the luxuries of life.

The coming of prohibition was a real rescue expedition. There is a marked contrast between then and now.

The flagrant abuses of the law are regrettable and call for the best thought of the people, and an aroused conscience, to bring about different and better conditions, but the nation as a whole is behind the eighteenth amendment, and the democratic party will not go on record, by voice or act, to the contrary.

Would Favor Bonds
If Paid by Oil and Gas Collections

Editor Constitution: I have been interested in the discussion, by different people of the state, of the proposed state bond issue for road reconstruction. I was particularly interested in the letter by Mr. Martin Amorous, of Marietta, and your reply appearing in your issue of the 8th instant.

I would not have a word to say, were it not for the fact, that in your reply to Mr. Amorous, you state that no part of this bond payment is expected from ad valorem taxes, but that it will be raised with a sinking fund to be set aside from the taxes gathered on the sale of gasoline and automobile taxes, which sinking fund is to discharge the bonded debt.

If the payment of the bonds issued by the state is to be made contingent upon the collection of sufficient money from the sale of gasoline and automobile taxes only, then your position would be entirely consistent. But I take it, if such conditions are imposed, that the sale of these bonds would have to be at a very great discount, indeed, a purchaser at any price could be found. As I understand it, a bond issue by the state carries with it the credit of

WOODS WILL WORK FOR NEW JAP PACT

Seattle, Wash., June 16.—Cyrus Woods, who is retiring as ambassador to Japan, arrived today from Yokohama. He is en route to Washington to report to Secretary Hughes.

Mr. Woods said at Victoria, B. C., where the trans-Pacific liner, President McKinley, touched, that he would urge the United States to reconsider the policy of exclusion of immigration from the far east as recently put into law.

"Japan does not want to force emigrants on the United States if we do not wish to receive them," he said. "The Japanese government, I believe, would be willing to agree to almost any form of restrictive treaty, but the exclusion provision in the immigration law has struck them a blow to their national pride."

"While there was deep feeling among all classes of Japanese against the passage of the exclusion act, I have seen no action that was not inspired by the government."

Accorded Ovation.

There have been no demonstrations against him, he declared. Other passengers on the liner from Japan declared that, on the contrary, the retiring diplomat's journey from Tokyo to Yokohama was one continuous ovation.

Mr. Woods said there was no immediate ending for an admitted period of bad feeling against America, short of replacing the exclusion act by a restrictive treaty.

"The present feeling," he said, "is likely to be lasting."

He said, however, that he does not believe this feeling is due to the extent of involving the nations in war.

"Both nations have too much good sense," he added.

"The exclusion act," he said, "came into sharp contrast with America's attitude of instant relief from all classes when Japan was stricken by earthquake."

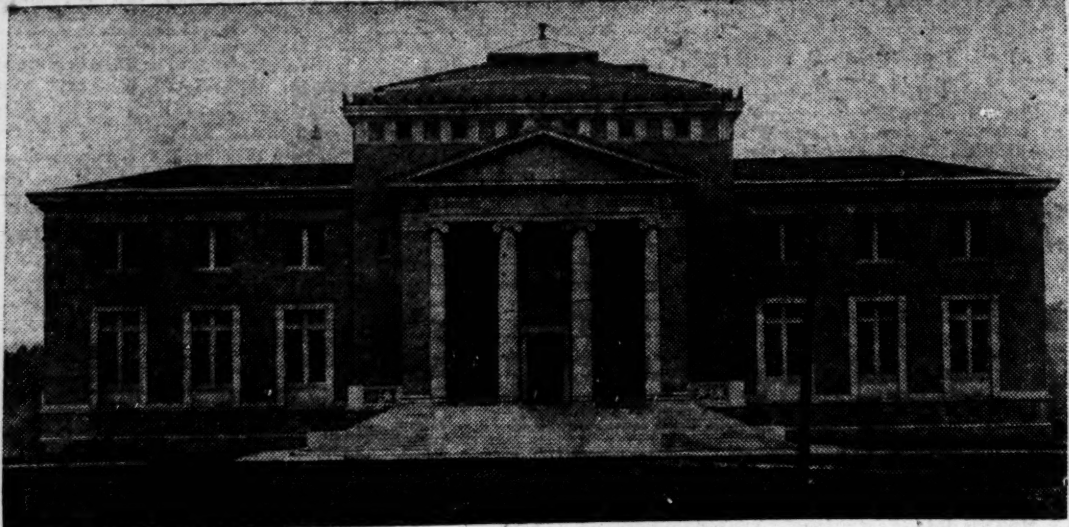

The people of Japan were and are at a loss to understand what had happened. They were surprised and hurt, rather than resentful."

Mr. Woods commented upon the reception that had been accorded the visiting American round-the-world fliers in Japan.

Reception to Fliers.

"They were so flooded with invitations that it became virtually necessary for me to order them to accept some of them," he said. "The military attaché of the embassy and the advance officer of the flight came to me when the fliers arrived, with the announcement that the attaché said they would have to devote all their available time to the care of their planes and engines. I called the fliers in and told them that I had 100 percent for their idea of putting the business of the flight ahead of pleasure, but that it would be necessary for them to accept official entertainment from the government. So they accepted invitations from Prince Kan'in, of the royal house, from president of the aeronautical society and

Memorial to Dead Heroes of World War Dedicated at State University Today

Athens, Ga., June 16.—(Special.) University of Georgia men and women everywhere have cause to be proud of the handsome memorial to the war dead of the university, which will be dedicated Tuesday, "Alumni day."

This memorial is a handsome building, known as Memorial hall, that has cost a quarter million dollars to build, and which will stand as a perpetual reminder of the sacrifice made by the men who went from university halls to the battlefields of the World war. There are 47 of these heroes, and their names have been raised in brass and placed in the main hall of the building.

On Tuesday, Alexander R. Lawton, of Savannah, representing the board of trustees and the alumni, will tender the building to the board of trustees, and Judge Richard B. Russell, chairman of the board, will accept it on behalf of the board of trustees.

The building was erected out of funds subscribed by the alumni and friends of the university. George Foster Peabody, of New York, has given a number of paintings for its decoration, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hirsch have furnished the ten living rooms on the top floor as a memorial to their five children, two of whom were graduates of the university.

from the minister of war and then put in the rest of their time tuning up their planes."

Mr. Woods insisted that his resignation was not on account of the enactment of exclusion, but was solely due to the critical health of Mrs. Mary T. Marchand, Mrs. Woods' mother, who was injured in an earthquake that wasted Tokyo and Yokohama in September.

"I am not so thin skinned that I would have resigned on account of the exclusion act," he declared.

Mr. and Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Marchand left today for Washington. In the steerage of the McKinley were 238 Japanese, many of them girls, who had been seen over 12 years old. Most of the Japanese were hurrying to enter the United States before exclusion becomes effective July first.

BUCHANAN ASKS PLACE OF COUNTY TREASURER

Alderman Claude E. Buchanan, for more than nine years prominent in public affairs in Atlanta, Monday announced his candidacy for the office of county treasurer to succeed Hubert L. Culberson, whose death occurred recently. The new treasurer will be elected November 2 at the general election.

Alderman Buchanan stated that he had decided to make the race at the suggestion of a hundred or more friends and associates who considered his business career, during the last 20 years of which he has been secretary and treasurer of one of the city's largest jobbing houses, equipped him to conduct the business of county treasurer efficiently.

The alderman received his education in Atlanta public schools, which he served for five years as member of the old school commission which was abolished after he had resigned to become a member of council. He served two years as councilman and this is the second year of his three-year term as alderman.

Alderman Buchanan is a member of the Elks, Masons, Junior Order and Pi Kappa Phi.

Holland Takes Office.

C. M. Holland, for twelve years purchasing agent for Fulton county, Monday posted $100,000 bond and was sworn in as county treasurer, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Culberson.

Mr. Holland was elected by the board of county commissioners to serve until the Culberson term expires January 1. He states that he will not be a candidate in the November election.

Candidates for treasurer must register not later than noon, June 21, the regular limit for all races in the November, 1924, elections. Claude C. Mason, chairman of the county democratic executive committee announced Monday following a meeting of the subcommittee.

THREE PERSONS KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Petersburg, Va., June 16.—Three persons were killed and two others injured early today when the automobile in which they were traveling from Richmond to Raleigh, N. C., left the road and struck a telephone pole at the foot of a 10-foot embankment on the Richmond-Petersburg turnpike.

The dead are: Mrs. Amelia Heller, of Richmond, and Gerson Heller and Morris Rosenthal, of Raleigh. Miss Beulah Hutzler, of Richmond, and Stanley Kahn, of Raleigh, were injured.

Neither Miss Hutzler nor Kahn is thought to have been seriously injured, although it was stated at the Petersburg hospital that Kahn probably will be kept at the institution for several days. He was severely cut about the head. Miss Hutzler left the hospital after being treated for slight bruises and cuts.

The dead are thought to have been killed almost instantly. The cause of the accident has not been definitely determined.

HEALTH TALKS BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Belly Exercises in Bronchitis.

In cases of chronic bronchitis (recurring winter cough) associated, as such cases so often are, with bronchiectasis (dilation or ballooning of bronchi) or with the production of an excessive amount of sputum (bronchorrhea) or with emphysema (ballooning of portions of the lungs) it is often difficult to aid drainage by postural maneuvers, as we have already described in recent issues, and to aid the breathing by exercises, provided the subject's condition permits exercise. If there is any doubt about that, the physician who knows the subject's condition can decide whether exercise is advisable.

There seems to be some impairment of the expiratory function in most cases of chronic bronchitis. That is, the individual breathes out with more difficulty, the chest does not empty itself as readily as it does in a normal individual, nor as completely. That's where the wheeze comes in. Where there's a wheeze there's difficulty of expiration, as a rule. This fact is most strikingly shown in true asthma, in the seizure of which the wheeze is wholly expiratory and there is comparatively little difficulty about taking in air (inspiration).

One of the easiest and least laborious exercises consists in standing before the mirror and drawing slowly to expire, pressing upon the lower ribs and sides of the belly with your hands near the end of the expiration, and at the very end bend forward with a "how" to the woman or gentleman who is watching you perform. Repeat this several times night and morning, and after you've become accustomed you should repeat it some 20 times at a session.

Even less laborious and perhaps more effective in emptying the chest is artificial respiration manipulation in the way which everybody should understand—Schaefer's method. For this you assume the prone posture while a volunteer manipulates your breathing for five minutes night and morning. Unless you are quite stout it is better to place a folded blanket or hard pillow under your belly.

Provided the heart function is not embarrassed—as it sometimes is in chronic bronchitis—the best belly exercise is probably something like the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth movements of the Second Brady symphony.

Just the eleventh and thirteenth if you're in very poor physical condition. Or the bare eleventh movement, then, if you're not entirely. The eleventh movement runs as follows:

Lie prone, hands on floor. Without lifting head or shoulders from floor, slowly raise both legs up to vertical, breathing in as you do it; then slowly lower them to floor again, breathing out. Repeat this only ten times at first and gradually increase as you grow accustomed to the exercise, until you can do it 20 times night and morning. If you find it more natural to breathe out as you raise your legs and in as you lower them, why suit yourself about that. Just breathe and don't try to hold the breath during exertion. The twelfth movement is done in the same position and consists of pulling the body up to sitting posture, and letting it down to supine as many times. The thirteenth movement is the eleventh revised and enlarged, same motif with variations. Instead of merely raising the legs to the vertical, you carry the movement farther, flexing hips and knees each time so that the thighs nearly or quite touch the body for an instant before the legs are returned to starting position.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Pasteurized Milk?

Is pasteurized milk fattening? Is it as nutritious and digestible as certain milk? Is it better than raw milk? (H. O.)

Answer.—It is practically as fattening as certified or raw milk, but I think not quite so nutritious in every sense for pasteurization diminishes the vitamin content of milk and raw milk is preferable for that reason alone, if it is pure. Certified milk is the finest, is the cleanest, obtainable. Pasteurization is a compromise with disease and filth—but a necessary compromise, it seems, in the marketing of milk at a reasonable price in cities. If you can have raw milk, delivered from a neighboring farm or by a neighbor who keeps a cow, you're in luck. If the milk reaches you many hours after milking, pasteurization is a safety measure, unless you can afford certified milk, which, of course, is kept refrigerated from cow to your kitchen and needs no heating to kill off disease germs such as are likely to be present in ordinary market milk. Pasteurization means heating the milk up to about 145 degrees F., and holding at that temperature 20 to 30 minutes, then cooling. A sort of parboiling, and to my mind a sure way to spoil the milk for drinking purposes, if one is fond of good milk.

In a Water Show.

I am with a water show which compels me to be in the water all day and part of the night. I am having much trouble with my ears caused by water entering the inner ears and remaining there. I had an abscess in the inner ear and suffered a lot. Can you suggest any way to keep the water out? (Miss S. B. D.)

Answer.—Only the wearing of loosely inserted plugs of lamb's wool (not cotton) in the ear canals, when you must be in the water.

The Women's Engineering society of Great Britain now numbers some 200 working members, besides honorary members who give their support.

Valuable Drugs Found Concealed In Scrub Brushes

New York, June 16.—Drugs valued at more than $2,000,000 were seized last Saturday on a truck coming off a pier at New York, N. Y., it became known today. H. D. Easterbrook, chief of the special agents of the treasury department, who conducted the raid, said the seizure was one of the most elaborate and effective schemes ever divulged for smuggling narcotics into the United States.

The drugs were secreted in the handles of 5,000 scrubbing brushes. The cases in which they arrived had been watched since the steamship President Roosevelt docked June 3, Mr. Easterbrook said. On Saturday the treasury agents saw two men climb the cases and load them on a truck which was seized as it started off the pier.

The men, who gave their names as Abraham Palowitz and Otto Anderson, both of New York, were arrested.

The seizure broke up a German syndicate, Chief Easterbrook said, which had smuggled drugs valued at more than $5,000,000 into the United States in two years.

Treasury agents working for two years in several foreign countries unmasked the smuggling scheme. A year ago an agent at Bremen, Germany, by chance opened several cases labeled "brushes" and "returned German goods." He found only bricks and stones wrapped in paper. The boxes had been shipped to Germany in bond, supposedly from Trinidad by way of the United States.

The syndicate was based at the treasury department at Washington and agents here were instructed to watch all cargoes coming from Germany.

A month ago it was learned that the same cases, re-packed, were shipped from Bremen on the President Roosevelt, consigned to Trinidad by way of the United States in care of Palowitz.

Chief Easterbrook and his men found that Palowitz, a bonded truckman, who had hauled only three consignments of goods from ships in a year, was to transfer the cases to a South American steamship line in Brooklyn and agents watched him closely. As scheduled, three cases labeled "brushes" arrived on the President Roosevelt. They lay in storage several days until Palowitz and Anderson appeared.

Under international regulations goods shipped in bond through the United States to another country are not opened by customs officials.

Treasury officials said the smugglers' scheme was to haul the cases to a garage, substitute others stenciled in the same manner but containing only stones and ship them to Trinidad. From Trinidad they were sent back as "returned goods" but filled with narcotics. Drugs thus flowed into the country both from Trinidad and Germany, the agents stated.

T. M. Lloyd, of Pensacola; William Steitz, of Lakeland; Harvey Payne, of Jacksonville; and J. B. Bizzardi, of Lake City. Between 150 and 175 were here for the meeting.

HIGH VALUE PLACED ON PHILLIPS' LUMBER

Washington, June 16.—The alleged lumber fraud conspiracy trial was resumed today in district supreme court with the prosecution offering additional testimony as to the quality and value of the surplus lumber, especially the hardwoods bought from Frank T. Sullivan, of Buffalo, N. Y., one of the defendants. Among those testifying were Frank C. Sherman, of the Maddox Table company of Jamestown, N. Y.; E. T. Watt, former lumber inspector for the National Cashier company, of Louisville, Ky.; James F. Mahoney, of the Kohler industries, New York; and William B. Swift, purchasing agent of the Harvester company, of Chicago, Ill.

All these witnesses told of the quality of the lumber and placed its valuation in excess of $300 per thousand feet. The government received only $115 per thousand feet under its contract with Phillips & Stephens.

19 LIVES ARE LOST IN DAKOTA STORM

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—South Dakota counted the toll of the worst state-wide storm in its history late today and found eight known dead; 11 reported dead from parts of the state where verification was impossible, hundreds of head of stock dead and property valued at more than a million dollars injured or demolished.

The storm broke last Saturday and continued throughout most of the night over parts of the state, sweeping from the southeastern section of South Dakota northwestward across the prairies and spending itself on the reaches of the range country west of the Missouri river.

Family Wiped Out.

Unconfirmed reports were that an entire family of eight killed in the demolition of a home near Bijou hills in Brule county and that the storm had claimed two lives at White Lake and another at Blunt.

Ziebach county, was razed, as was Forestburg, in the east central part of the state. Hardly a business block escaped, serious damage at Wessington Springs, west of which for 20 miles, a series of tornadoes leveled every barn. Two big barns at the state training school at Plankinton were wrecked with casualties to a state herd of blooded cattle there.

Many Cattle Killed.

At Pierre the storm took half the roof off the Locke hotel, landmark of many a legislative pow-wow, and demolished the upper floors. From west of the river, on sheep and cattle ranges, reports which filtered in during the day, hundreds, perhaps thousands, of sheep and cattle dead, buildings and low and flax and wheat crops battered by hail, wind and rain.

The area which suffered most damage was in the south central section of the state, where a series of tornadoes swept through a territory including nine counties accounted for four known deaths and from which came the unconfirmed reports of 11 other fatalities.

GREAT BRITAIN PAYS $69,000,000 INTEREST

New York, June 16.—Payment of semi-annual interest on the British debt, totaling slightly less than $69,000,000, was made to the United States treasury today by J. P. Morgan & Co., acting as fiscal agents for the British government.

The major portion of the amount was drawn by the Morgan firm to the Federal Reserve bank for treasury account, and remainder of the payment was met by treasury certificates. No Liberty bond were included.

NO WAGE REDUCTION IN U. S. WOOLEN MILLS

Shawheen Village, Mass., June 16.—William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company, in a statement today, said that he and other directors of the company "do not think this is the proper time to consider a reduction in wages."

Mr. Wood's statement in which he predicted increased orders for the mills, followed a meeting of the board of directors.

"The outlook for business," he said, "must steadily improve as the political situation for a business administration advances. Of course, there is a letting down in the textile industry in conjunction with the general business hesitation, but I and my associates do not think this is the proper time to consider a reduction in wages.

"The demand for goods is here in this country, although it may be delayed in reaching the mills. The country's consumption must be tremendous and the result must show in renewed orders to the mills in due time."

"No true American at this time would wish to see any reduction in the general purchasing consumption power of this country."

"A mere thousand dollars invested in this Mexican Milkweed Rubber will make you safe for life and enable you to gratify your fondest hopes."

"I have no hope," responded J. Fuller Gloom. "Some years ago I made an investment that caused me to use up my entire available stock of hope."—Kansas City Star.

A Mint Julip

"Are you taking a julip? The same here, too; It's a drink for the gods on a day like this, When the blood is as hot as an Irish stew; Sure, this cozy retreat's a haven of bliss, A luxury to which naught else can compare; The swift spinning fans, and paintings that hint, Of dangerous glances from beauty most rare,— But here comes our icy decoction of mint."

Served in dignified Colonial Sterling Silver Drinking cups any summer-time drink will taste twice as good. We have on display a wide variety of these.

Roehampton, England, June 16.—(By The Associated Press.)—The entire squad of American women tennis players who have invaded England to compete in the various tournaments this season today swept their way through the first round of the Roehampton club's invitation tournament, and didn't lose a set in the first round.

Helen Wills, the American champion, who is the star attraction in the tournament, is not entered in the singles competition. She and Mrs. George Wrightman, of California, however, in the doubles had no difficulty in disposing of their opponents, Mrs. Elliott and Miss P. H. Bransfield, beating them 6-1, 6-4.

CHICKS WIN ANOTHER.

Mobile, Ala., June 18.—Memphis batted first and took the lead in the first inning. The Chickies were forced to play defense to all corners of the diamond today and they were not very successful. They made their fourth straight game from Mobile, but they were not able to get a hit in four hits out of five time at home. Memphis' pitcher, W. L. Yarraz, got a hit or more from four innings and then the Chickies' Rogers finished the game, holding the score at 10-0.

New York, June 16.—Conflicting crop advices from the southwest were reflected by irregular price movements in the cotton market today, but the continuance of high temperatures in that quarter evidently led to uneasiness. After selling off nearly to 25.54, October rallied to 26.03, closing at 25.95. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 20 points on August, but from 10 to 13 points net higher on later deliveries.

The opening was easy at a decline of 24 to 30 points, active months settling 26 to 31 points net lower in the early trading because of relatively easy cables and reports of generally clear and warm weather over Sunday. The decline was checked by covering on private reports of high temperatures in the southwest, but on a moderate rally there was a renewal of July liquidation which unsettled the middle market. July sold off to 28.45 or 42 points lower. New crop eased off slightly, however, and the general list stiffened up on the official weather details showing temperatures of 100 degrees or more at many points in Texas and Oklahoma. Exports today 14,290, making 5,494,750 so far this season. Port receipts 12,490, U. S. port stocks 131,182.

SMALL GAINS
AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, June 16.—The cotton market was reactionary at the start today mainly on much poorer Liverpool cables than due, but rallied sharply later on the continuance of the heat wave in the western portion of the belt, which in the early trading fell 55 points below Saturday's close, rallied 44 points, but did not reach the improvement and closed at 28.40 or 23 points net lower for the day. October and December dipped 27 and 33 points at the start. In the later rally October traded as high as 25.23 and December at 25.00 or 43 to 45 points above the early lows and held most of the improvement, the close showing net gains for 7 points on October and 11 points on December.

The comparative weakness in July was attributed to renewed liquidation in that month based on expectation of liberal tenders both here and in the northern market when the first notations arrived.

After the early dip shorts became apprehensive on account of the continued high temperatures in Texas and Oklahoma and covered rather than for the day. October and December is already injuring young cotton. The advance was checked in the afternoon by reports of cooler weather and showers in Oklahoma.

Stock Letter.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, June 16.—There is a growing impression that with the low cost of money that mild inflation is inevitable, but whether or not this time the public is gradually coming to the conclusion that business has been about the worst since Wall Street is following the usual course of discounting by some months a change for the better.

Cotton Letters.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, June 16.—We feel the market has a better opportunity for a moderate decline than an advance unless the high winds have been done at ref. On the other hand, Liverpool due Tuesday, July 16, 1924, October, 15.20.

POST & FLAG.

New York, June 16.—It is felt in local trading circles that conditions at the moment warrant a low level even if only temporarily but there is more than the usual hesitation about applying strong arm methods to bring this about, as the long interest in new crops and the trade variety and not easily dissipated.

FENNER & BEANE.

New Orleans, June 16.—Bullish sentiment was again in evidence when the market opened here but temperatures of 100 to 110 degrees have been done at ref. On the other hand, Liverpool due Tuesday, July 16, 1924, October, 15.20.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, June 16.—Outside business is limited and the trading largely of a professional nature, but with any evidence of serious damage to the crop we look for a radical broadening of the general speculative demand.

C. P. ELLIS & CO.

New Orleans, June 16.—The weather in the belt continues quite favorable except for the high temperatures in the southwest. Opinions concerning the effect of the later crop are divided, but we do not think that the heat wave has been done at ref. On the other hand, Liverpool due Tuesday, July 16, 1924, October, 15.20.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, June 16.—The market is rather a healthy opportunity to respond to a bullish news in view of the fact that there has been very little heavy buying lately and the market has advanced gradually in face of odds which lead us to believe that the market is fundamentally very steady and might easily have a sharp upturn on first signs of a radical broadening of the general speculative demand.

A. V. CURRAN & CO.

New Orleans, June 16.—H. & B. says: There is a heavy cotton market, but the map indicates hot weather and thunder storms scattered generally over entire belt, but continuance of favorable weather leads us to believe that the market is fundamentally very steady and might easily have a sharp upturn on first signs of a radical broadening of the general speculative demand.

M'DOWELL GOES ON TRIAL TODAY

Former Decatur, Georgia, Youth To Face Jury Second Time in Week for Murder.

Clearwater, Fla., June 16.—The second trial of Frank McDowell on a charge of having murdered his mother will begin Tuesday in Pinellas county court, with Judge McMullen presiding.

Last Wednesday the jury in the first trial, after having been out since the preceding afternoon, reported to the court it was hopelessly out of agreement, and the jurors were dismissed. Upon declaration of a mistrial by the court, it was rumored the jury had at first stood 10 to 2 in favor of acquittal, and in an effort to agree had considered a verdict of life imprisonment, but that one juror had held out for the death penalty.

McDowell, according to a confession ruled admissible during the first trial, shot and killed his mother and father as they lay asleep in their home at St. Petersburg on the night of February 19, last. One year prior to the slaying of his parents, according to the confession, he set fire to the bed of his two younger sisters, Marian and Wilhelmina in their Decatur, Ga., home, causing their deaths.

Indications are that insanity will be the defense in the second trial as in the first, when attorneys for McDowell testified he suffered a hebephrenic type of dementia praecox. It is expected, however, that the prosecution will counter this move with expert testimony that the youthful slayer was not insane at the time of the crime, as reports are that McDowell in jail during the last few days.

County Judge John U. Bird has been retained by the state to assist the prosecution.

McDowell was seen in the county jail today. He appears to be in good health, happy and convinced that he will never be convicted. He was sent to the insane asylum for a time and has expressed his conviction that he will recover and become a useful citizen in course of time.

The second trial of McDowell will hardly draw the crowds that filled the courthouse last week during the first trial.

250,000 FRANCS PEARLS THAT COST BRING 11,280,000

Paris, June 16.—The pearls of Mme. Thiers, bequeathed to the Louvre museum nearly 50 years ago, today were sold at auction for the sum of 11,280,000 francs. Mme. Thiers, whose husband, Louis Adolphe Thiers, was a great statesman and former premier of France, originally purchased the pearls one by one at the same jewelry shop whose books still show that they cost her 250,000 francs.

INDICTED CRIMINAL LAWYER REARRANGED

New York, June 16.—William J. Fallon, criminal lawyer, who was arrested last Saturday by department of justice agents after an extensive search following his failure to appear for trial on a charge of bribing a federal juror, was re-arrested before Federal Judge Knox today and held in $25,000 bail for trial in July. Fallon pleaded guilty at his first arraignment. He was found Saturday in an uptown apartment. Detectives had found a clue to him by following Gertrude Vanderbilt, an actress.

600 June Brides See Players As Guests of Constitution

"Here comes the bride," as presented at the Atlanta theater by the Baldwin players last night, is summer entertainment, pure and simple. Its purity comes through the three acts unscathed, as is, of course, the inevitable rule with these farces that border on the risqué, but steer safely through the sloughs by innuendo and compromising situations.

On the score of its simplicity, there can be absolutely no argument.

Fast and Furious Farce.

However, it is a fast and furious farce. It brings the single from the lips many times, and occasionally touches the more genuine guffaw from the low or esophagus. It revolves around the complications attending the matrimonial aspirations of a penniless young lawyer and the daughter of a wealthy, but irascible father. It includes a marriage to an unknown, unseen, heavily veiled bride. It causes the hero to refuse to elope with the heroine, even after she has run away from home for his sake. His reasons, however, are not romantic ideals, but the hard necessity of an earlier marriage and the dangers in a bigamy charge. Yet he remains the hero throughout.

The second act achieves the slight touch of the risqué by arranging that the unmarried hero and heroine sleep alone in the same house all through the important night. Oh, of course, separate rooms and each ignorant of the other's presence.

John Little, as you might guess, is the hero. It is one role that fits him best. It has to be merely his own popular self and every flapper in the audience envies the leading lady.

Gladys Hurlbut Feminine Lead.

Gladys Hurlbut is the leading lady in the cast. She has splendid opportunity to display her famous smile, but surely she can't have thought much of the part when she studied it first. For how any genuine youth, of over 20 years of age, could expect a happy life married to a girl who whimpers, weeps and grows hysterical so frequently, is beyond comprehension. But that's the way of these farce heroines, and it is entirely the fault of the author, not the performer.

Stuart Beebe has two minor roles which he handles with experienced art. Romaine Callender is the choleric father satisfactorily. Al Roberts has another clever character "bit" as the marrying judge. Rhea Dively is again an excellent character woman and Lawrence Keating is an adequate Castilian villain. Lora Rogers has a role that calls for brilliant performance and she brings to it just that quality of work. Ray Rawlings continues to show the steady improvement in his technique that has marked his Atlanta engagement from the start.

June Brides Present.

The audience last night was composed of a high percentage of June brides—with, it is presumed, the June groom. For it was recalled The Constitution and the Baldwin players united in an invitation to all June brides of Atlanta to attend the first three days' performances as the first guests of the paper and the company.

About 600 June brides—mostly of recent Junes—took advantage of this invitation to every advantage, the final batch being put into the mails on Monday afternoon.

The tremendous response to this offer proves two things. One is that June brides evidently read The Constitution, and the other is that they approve of the Baldwin players and their productions. At least, they approve when the play is called "Here Comes the Bride." Which, after all, is creditable evidence that June marriages in Atlanta are usually happy in their outcome. For, otherwise, the brides wouldn't want to be reminded of their bridal glory, would they?

Edna Purviance Tells Court How Dines Dresses for Party

MABEL NORMAN WINS BAILIFF'S ATTENTION

Los Angeles, Calif., June 16.—Edna Purviance, plump, blonde screen actress, who has faced a klieg light since Horace Greer, specialist young chauffeur with heroic cut, interrupted a tea party at which she and Mabel Norman were being entertained by Courtland S. Dines, last New Year's day, took the witness stand Monday to reveal that Dines did his dressing in the bath room.

Miss Purviance testified that she was in a bath room when she heard a sound "like the crack of a whip."

"What did you do when you came out of the bath room?" the prosecuting attorney asked.

"I found Mr. Dines sitting on the sofa with blood on his shirt," the actress said. "I helped him to bed."

"Did Miss Norman help you?"

"She did."

Attorney Hahn broke in with a question as to whether or not she, Miss Norman or Dines had weapons.

"There wasn't a gun in the house that I knew of," was the reply.

Miss Purviance was present during the forensic session, at which ten eager women and two enthusiastic men jumped at the opportunity to sit as jurors in the case. Miss Norman, however, did not appear until this afternoon, and then only after a summons was issued by Judge Chas. Crail.

The exotic Mabel, nattily clad in a gray divinity suit and a small, round hat, swept into the room, preceded by her attorney and followed by two feminine attendants. Spectators craned their necks, the court session paused, and all eyes were turned toward the comedienne as she advanced to a place in the front of the court room. Bailiff Daniels hustled to dust off a chair, which had been held for Miss Norman.

Mabel sat down and gazed with kindly eyes toward her former chauffeur. Dines was not present. Whereabouts are somewhat of a mystery. He last reported from Denver, telling the district attorney over long distance telephone that his father was at death's door, and that he could not get away. The prosecution, however, is hopeful of having him here within a day or so.

ATLANTA REGIMENT GIVEN NEW NAME

122d regiment will be the same—except that they will be more sacred, will have a deeper significance, will be closer to every member's heart, as a result of a record of sacrifice.

Many of the officers and men of the new regiment saw service under these colors in France. Those officers and men of the new 122d who saw service in the American army under other colors will as zealously guard the glorious history of the organization.

Campaign Results.

Following the regular Monday night drill period, attended by Colonel J. M. Kimbrough, Jr., and Captain R. B. Ennis, senior and junior instructors, respectively, for Georgia national guard units, announcement of results of the drive for recruits was made. Company H, commanded by Captain Ray K. Smathers, was awarded the huge banner for first prize, having added 25 new men.

Company I, commanded by Captain McKibben, commanding service company, who reported 24 new men. Other companies reported fewer numbers, with a net gain for the regiment during the drive for recruits of more than 104 men. Lieutenant Colonel Eugene Oberdorfer, who has handled the six weeks' campaign, was warmly congratulated by fellow officers.

Among business matters discussed in the usual weekly officers' meeting were the plans for the annual rifle shoot, which begins Monday at Fort McPherson. The regiment numbers many of the best marksmen in the state and the team selected to represent Georgia at the annual competition at Camp Perry in September will be one of the strongest in many years, it is predicted.

Another matter discussed was that of plans for the annual picnic at Simon's Island. Preparations are going forward steadily. Captain Ennis having returned from a tour of inspection of the camp site only last week. Final details were worked out and the matter of securing a special troop train and other details will be completed during the next 10 days, it was announced.

COMMUNISTS BLOCK THIRD PARTY PLANS

St. Paul, Minn., June 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Communists and representatives of union labor and former organizations fought today for strategic ground from which to control the National Farmer Labor Progressive convention which opens here tomorrow. After a hectic debate in the committee on arrangements and organization, the issue was undecided.

The skirmish lines were drawn between two issues. One has to do with the endorsement of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin as a candidate for the presidency. The other relates to the terms of organization which the backers of the convention hope will result from the gathering.

The farm and union labor groups, constituting a majority of the committee, will recommend to the convention that no centralized party be formed, but that state organizations be fostered through which the political ideas of the Wisconsin senator may be fostered. The idea of no nomination for the presidency but an endorsement of Senator La Follette goes with this report.

The communist minority will ask the convention to make itself the nucleus of a strongly centralized national organization. They would nominate a national ticket, adopt a platform and elect a central committee.

An attempt to have the majority report adopted by the committee was blocked by the determined communist opposition.

The communists were headed by William Z. Foster, chairman and C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers' Party. Opposing them were William Mahoney, of St. Paul, chairman of the arrangements committee, and temporary convention chairman, the farmer-labor movement. They fell naturally if the majority report were rejected, they held their ground.

FARMER-LABOR PARTY WILL CONVENE TODAY

St. Paul, Minn., June 16.—Basis for representation in the national organization was under consideration today by the arrangements committee of the national farmer-labor progressive convention, which opens tomorrow.

A majority faction, headed by William Mahoney, of St. Paul, favored representation on the national committee of a third party for industrial groups but none for the communist party and other economic organizations.

William Z. Foster, chairman of the workers' party, and C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of that party, are heading a minority group that seeks representation for organizations such as theirs on the national committee.

Delegates arriving today, according to Mrs. Mahoney and other leaders, seemed almost unanimous in supporting Senator Robert M. La Follette, for the third party presidential nomination, but the arrangements committee will propose postponement of action on presidential selections until after the progressive conference in Cleveland, July 4.

If the committee reports indicate possibilities of cooperation between the various factions, leaders said the convention should not last longer than two or three days. It was the consensus of opinion that factional conflict might prolong the sessions through the week.

ATLANTA BOY MEMBER OF MISSISSIPPI CREW

Lloyd W. Norman, son of Mrs. M. Norman, who has been an employee of the Atlanta National bank for the past six years, was an enlisted man on board the U. S. S. Mississippi at the time of the recent disaster.

Young Norman came to Atlanta with his mother from Rock Hill, S. C., in 1916, after the death of his father, William N. Norman. He entered the fourth grade of Hill Street school and afterward that school in the time of his removal to Kirkwood to live in August, 1920, where he attended the Kirkwood grammar school. After one year in high school, he left to take a position with the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company. He was a member of the Kirkwood football team and popular with his schoolmates. He was a member of the Spratling-Harrington and Thomas, and later of Hines Brothers, on December 29, 1923, young Norman enlisted in the navy and was later detailed aboard the Mississippi, leaving New York in April and sailing through the Panama canal for San Francisco. Letters to his mother since reaching California have been full of interesting details of his life and work, giving her cause for rejoicing over her sacrifice in allowing him to take this cruise.

She was a member of the First Presbyterian church, and took an active part in church affairs and her visits to Atlanta during the past few years were marked by happy renewals of old friendships.

Finds Kellogg's Bran "Easy way to avoid constipation" after suffering for years

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It can lead to many others. Twenty years' suffering with constipation. I determined this man's health. Kellogg's Bran restored it—as it has done for thousands. This is what he says:

"Gentlemen: After eating Kellogg's Bran twice a day for one month I find it not only an 'Easy Way to Avoid Constipation,' but an easy and most pleasant way to cure it. I have been troubled with constipation . . . for more than twenty years . . . after adopting the milk and bran diet I find my stomach greatly improved, and find it a specific for constipation. I deem it only justice that you should know what your product has done for me, and what it is capable of doing for others." (The original of this letter is on file at the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.)

Kellogg's Bran relieves mild and chronic constipation because it is ALL bran. It brings sure results. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine in nature's own way. Don't experiment. Only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to bring permanent relief—or your grocer returns your money. You should eat two tablespoons daily in chronic cases, with every meal.

The flavor is delicious—nut-like—cooked and krumbled. Enjoy it with milk or cream, sprinkled on other cereals, cooked with hot cereals, or in the delightful recipes on every package. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by grocers everywhere.—(adv.)

Why Have Gray Hair?

No need at all to have even a trace of grayness, since Science has given us the clean, colorless liquid known as Kolor-Bak, which is a true substitute for the natural pigmentation.

Kolor-Bak quickly restores any gray hair to its original color. The one clean, colorless liquid, as easy to apply as water, is for all shades. It is amazing to see how quickly the former color returns. No dyed or streaky look, but the natural, uniform shade throughout.

"My Hair Was Quite Gray"

"Only a short time ago my hair was quite gray and becoming grayer. It was falling out. My scalp itched and dandruff appeared. Only a few applications of Kolor-Bak stopped the itching and dandruff. My hair soon stopped coming out. Most wonderful of all, however, is that my hair is again its original color. I look ten years younger."

HOME AGAIN. At it turned out, Marjorie did not leave Hollister's airy mountain paradise for a week.

Before the old Indian, obeying her hurried instructions with impassive face, could bring out the car for the homeward trip, the sky had become overcast. Dark storm clouds climbed up from the west and the valley was torn with a gigantic wind that lashed the pines and sent the crimson and russet leaves of the hemlocks soaring frantically.

For three days the storm battled around the mountain's crest. The wind swooped and swirled and howled. The rain came down in white, drifting sheets. It seemed to Marjorie, starting out over the valley where the lashing tree-tops reminded her of great sea waves rolling in on a stormy beach, that the force of the elements must tear the house from its firm foundations. But she felt no fear, only an unwilling sort of fascination.

When the storm blew itself out, the mountain roads were impassable. Bridges were down over streams and great washouts gaped along the narrow trails.

Readily, Marjorie set herself to the task of waiting. Eager as she was to return to New York and set free her mind from the forces which would free her from Hollister and the hateful generosity which he had offered her, she found the wait not unpleasant. She began to understand the lure of the half-wilderness about her, the lure which Hollister felt. She liked the simple comforts of the house, its warm, cheerful fires, its array of interesting books, its deep inviting couches, the bright Indian rugs and blankets. She felt a cowardly desire to remain there always and escape the inevitable reckoning with the family. Undoubtedly, Mrs. Boice-Nevis, Julie and Lella were picturing her happily honeymooning in this mountain paradise, unless Hollister had communicated with them, which she doubted.

The day came at length when the old Indian told her that the trails were safe once more. It was with genuine regret that she found herself finally in the car beside him, struggling into a fur wrap for the weather had turned quite cold, passing through the stone-pillared gateway of Hollister's hacienda, for the last time.

It was night when they reached Soundview. Hutchins, who opened the familiar door for them, informed Marjorie that Mrs. Boice-Nevis was dining out. Mr. Dan was at the club. The sight of her in company with a stoical Indian almost cost Hutchins his pulse, acquired by years of careful training. He looked down-right startled when she told him to put the Indian up somewhere for the night.

To his relief, however, the Indian declined his chaperonage with a grunt and a shake of his head. Without a word he vanished into the night.

Marjorie went slowly up to her room. She took off her frock without calling Mathilda and slipped into a warm negligee. Hutchins brought up a tray with pheasant, a salad and hot tea.

It was close to midnight when Mrs. Boice-Nevis returned, and was informed by Hutchins that Miss Marjorie was in her room.

She came to stand in the doorway, her eyes incredulous at the sight of her daughter lying in the chaise longue before the fire.

"My dear, what a surprise!" she came forward and turned a gracious cheek for a caress of greeting. "Did my child get homesick for her mother, or was dear Reed called back on business?"

"Neither," Marjorie pushed forward a chair for her mother, feeling that she would be in need of support when the truth was broken to her.

Mrs. Boice-Nevis slipped her sumptuous evening wrap from her pretty white shoulders and fumbled for her gold cigarette case.

"What then?"

"Reed returned more than a week ago," said Marjorie in a low voice. "He left me in the mountains. He is not coming back—ever!"

"What!" her mother's voice was incredulous.

"He knows—the truth," Marjorie went on monotonously. "I told him."

"The truth?" echoed Mrs. Boice-Nevis sharply. "What did you tell him?"

"That I didn't love him, that I married him for his money."

"You fool!" the words came out between her mother's clenched teeth. "You awful fool! How dared you!"

The pretty Dresden china face was again with anger. The shallow blue eyes flashed lightning.

Marjorie flung up her head proudly. "I had to know some time. I should have told him before I married him, but I was too much of a coward. But I'm not a coward any longer. Heaven knows it took courage to come back to you and tell you what I'd done."

"What did Reed say?" demanded her mother breathlessly. "How did he leave you?"

For answer, Marjorie got up and going to her dressing bag, searched out the letter Hollister had left as his farewell. She gave it to her mother, who accepted it with shaking hand. While she read it, her face cleared. The furious color receded. When she looked up she was actually smiling.

Founder of Girl Scout Movement Will Speak at Mercer University

Mrs. Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scout movement in this country will be one of the distinguished guests at Mercer university and will speak to the assembled students enrolled in the cooperative leaders' training course at the Macon institute this week.

Mrs. Low received her inspiration for organizing the Girl Scouts from the English organization while on a visit to Sir Robert and Lady Baden Powell, the founder of the Girl Guides in England, and also the Boy Scouts. The two organizations are the same in principle, but the Girl Scouts have a program of activities adapted to the capacities and interests of girls, chosen for the purpose of helping the girls to realize the ideals of womanhood, as a preparation for their responsibilities in the home and service to the community. The Girl Scouts place emphasis on methods of training to develop initiative, self control, self-reliance, and service to others, and in general, the qualities of character of worth.

The Girl Scouts is one of the agencies supported by the Community Chest in Atlanta and in Macon, and in almost every city where the Community Chest is operated.

Mrs. Low will spend four days in Macon beginning Monday. She has been attending a national meeting of Girl Scouts in Chicago and has deferred her sailing for London, England for a week, in order to come to Macon. She will be in Macon during the Mercer Institute and will make one of the most inspiring talks at a luncheon on Tuesday.

Mrs. Low is originally from Savannah, and it was there that she organized the first troop of Girl Scouts. Her plans were formulated in London, eleven years ago.

AROUND-WORLD FLIERS LAND SAFE AT SAIGON

Hongkong, June 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—The three American army airplanes flying around the world landed safely at Saigon, the capital of French Cochinchina, at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Information to this effect was contained in news dispatches from Saigon this evening.

Dispatches earlier today from Tourane, another Indo-China city, said that the engine of Lieutenant Lowell Smith's air cruiser Chicago, which had made a forced landing between Hue and Tourane necessary, had been replaced and that the airman intended to leave there this morning.

The distance between Tourane and Saigon is about 300 miles.

SAYS PROBLEM SOLVED

Worcester, Mass., June 16.—President Wallace W. Atwood, of Clark university at commencement exercises this afternoon, announced the solving of the problem of an explosive for the Goddard rocket using a liquid to give propellant force without overheating the projectile, a model of which is completed and will be sent up this summer near this city. This is the rocket which it is claimed built on a larger scale, could reach the moon.

STONE WILL HEAD ALL ENGINEERS' ACTIVITIES

Under the reorganization plan, adopted by a two-thirds vote amending the constitution, two vice presidents, a secretary and a grand chief engineer will head departments under Mr. Stone's supervision.

Many Universities Hold Commencements

New Haven, Conn., June 16.—With the arrival of visiting graduates, classes ranged back to 1864, Yale's commencement week activities began in earnest today. The day's program included class day exercises of the Yale and Sheffield Scientific school classes, and the centennial exercises of the Yale law school.

Hamilton, N. Y.—Colgate university today conferred honorary degrees of doctors of law upon George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, and Richard Washburn Child, diplomat and author. Hiram Percy Maxon, president of the International Amateur Radio union, was made a doctor of science.

Boston.—The Rev. Ralph W. Sockman, of the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal church of New York, a graduate of Columbia university, took issue with the anti-prohibition views of President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia, in his address as commencement orator at Boston university today.

"Several years before the eighteenth amendment was adopted, a leading jurist of this country told a bar association that America was fast earning the reputation of being the most lawless nation among the leading countries of the world," he said. "The prohibition law did not cause our law-breaking tendency; it simply revealed it."

Chicago, June 16.—Young women won the bulk of the scholarship honors announced today at Northwestern university's 66th annual commencement, at which the largest class in its history was graduated. Degrees were presented to 1,197 students in the presence of about 4,000 spectators.

Northwestern's growth toward its ideals and towards its $200,000 endowment campaign, begun in 1920, which already has resulted in contributions of more than $9,000,000, were emphasized by Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of the institution.

Market Campaign Will Be Launched By Woman's Club

The market campaign will be launched Tuesday morning by the Atlanta Woman's club under the leadership of Mrs. Norman Sharp, president and former chairman of the market committee. The housewives of Atlanta and merchants of the market will not be the only ones to profit by this great movement, but the many orphanages of the community will also benefit by this interest.

Every Saturday the merchants will be asked to donate many of the nice fresh farm products which have not been sold and will necessarily have to be kept over until Monday, to a large community market committee for campaign to fill for the children of the orphanages.

Market Club Committee.
A large space in the market has been allotted to the Atlanta Woman's club market committee for campaign headquarters, where chairs will be furnished and the patrons of the market any rest while doing their shopping. A desk will be stationed in the headquarters where information may be given to the strangers who visit the market and a committee will be stationed there during the rush hours of each day.

Tuesday morning Mrs. Sharp and Mrs. Turner have arranged to have a very large committee present and at this time the new officers of the market committee will be installed. The clubwomen will wear badges, in order that they may be recognized as the hostess organization. One of the local bands will furnish music for the occasion and the campaign will be launched with enthusiasm.

Delicious cherries, raspberries, dewberries and other home-grown fruits are now on the market and on Tuesday farmers will make a special effort to have for the patrons every delicacy that the taste calls for at this season of the year.

Members of the Market campaign will be present to assist the clubwomen in launching the campaign. J. Frank Beck, who has been an ardent supporter of the municipal market enterprise, and a director in the company, expresses great satisfaction over the progress of the market at this time and predicts a great future for the campaign as a result of the market farmers.

Assisting Committee.
Assisting Mrs. Sharp and Mrs. Turner in launching the movement to promote interest for the city market will be Mrs. T. G. Delph, who will act as secretary to the committee; Mrs. John R. EAT GEORGIA PEACHES, IS CAMPAIGN SLOGAN

Americus, June 16.—(Special.)—The Kiwanis club of Americus has inaugurated a campaign to cause people to eat more peaches. In furtherance of this movement, the club has arranged to have a number of rubber stamps made and distributed among merchants here with the following wording: "Eat Delicious Georgia Peaches. Now on the Market." These will be imprinted upon every package and across the face of every piece of stationery used, according to the plan, and Georgia peaches will thus be advertised over a tremendous area, with resulting increase in the demand for the product. The plan was originated at a meeting of the club presided over by Vice President Sam H. Hays, President Evan Mathis being now en route to Denver, where he will attend the International Kiwanis convention as representative from the Americus club.

Manufacturers---Intensify Sales Efforts Here!

Sell the territory near at home. You save on traveling expenses and you can meet competition better because of advantageous freight rates.

Many Southern manufacturers do not realize the changes that have taken place in the South in the last decade. They do not know that the South is rich and prosperous, and that a concentrated sales drive under the proper advertising and merchandising plan would produce large increase in sales.

Why Oklahoma is a Fertile Field for The Sales Manager

Of course when anybody thinks of Oklahoma, he thinks of oil. The state has ranked first in oil production each year for the past five. But Oklahoma is likewise a great agricultural state.

It ranked fourth in cotton production in 1923, first in broom corn, eighth in wheat, third in grain sorghums.

In 1919, Oklahoma produced $425,000,000 in manufactured products, according to U. S. Statistical Abstract—including flour and grist mill products, lumber, packing plant products and cotton seed products.

In character of population, Oklahoma has everything favorable to offer. The native-born white population is 89.8%, according to the U. S. Census Bureau. Indian population is 2.8%, and Negroes, 7.4%.

Illiteracy among all classes is only 3.8%—among the lowest in the Southern states.

Oklahoma comprises a great group of progressive, thriving, up-to-date people who have money to spend and can be influenced by advertising.

Better Blackberry or Dewberry Jam Easily Made in 15 Minutes

Tastes Better—Looks Better—Costs Less and Never Fails

By ANN PROCTOR

Everyone who likes fresh blackberry pie or preserves will love good blackberry jam. Particularly when all the flavor of ripe blackberries is preserved in the jam. Until now, however, an expert was required to make it, and it has been expensive. CERTO, the natural "jell" making property of fruit, has solved the problem so that everyone can make and eat a lot of this delicious preserve.

To make blackberry (or dewberry) jam by the quick and easy CERTO method, follow this simple recipe:

Crush about 2 quarts ripe berries in separate portions, so that each berry is mashed. This allows fruit to quickly absorb the sugar during the short boil. Measure 4 level cups (2 lbs.) crushed berries into large kettle, add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for one full minute, remove from fire and stir in 1-2 bottle (scant 1-2 cup) CERTO. From time jam is taken off fire allow to stand not over 5 minutes by the clock, before pouring. In the meantime, skim, and stir occasionally to cool slightly. Then pour quickly.

Use same recipe for raspberry, strawberry or loganberry jam.

This CERTO process banishes all the guess work or worry as perfect results are certain when a simple recipe is followed. Unlike the old method "pound for pound" mixture boiled for thirty or more minutes, with considerable juice and flavor of the fruit being boiled away, the economical CERTO method requires only one minute's boiling and thereby saves the juice to make one-half more jam. That's the only reason why more sugar is used with CERTO.

CERTO is a pure fruit product—contains no gelatin or preservative. CERTO positively saves time, fruit, flavor and guess work. It makes all kinds of jams and jellies come out have never tasted before. CERTO is highly endorsed by national authorities and local cooking experts. Every woman who tries it recommends it to her friends and says she'll never be without it. Over seven million bottles were used last year.

The above recipe and nearly 100 other jams, jellies and marmalades are in the CERTO Book of Recipes which is enclosed with every bottle of CERTO.

Get a bottle of CERTO from your grocer right away. Start the new, sure, quick, economical way of making jams and jellies that keep indefinitely. You'll never return to the old "hit or miss" method. Make plenty of blackberry jam this year—no home ever has too much.

THE GUMPS—THAT'S DIFFERENT

was much abashed. Worse, he was embarrassed at the scene his mother made. She insisted on hugging and kissing him, blissfully ignorant of his pain and the presence of racing friends. When his father could get in a few words to ask of his experience, the boy was tremendously relieved.

"Why, I went down to New Orleans last fall," he said. "They wouldn't let me ride any more at the academy. I got a job exercising colts for a man named Molone, who trains for a millionaire named Bellman."

"Arthur, he did remember you, too," back there at home, declared Tilda, her mind reverting to the visit of Bellman's colts, the Prince and the Pauper, black colts, half brothers by Windblown. Five others to start, but they're skates."

All his resentment now welled up to a torrent that throbbed as though it would burst through the bonds of his aching bullet head. His fists clenched involuntarily, and he gritted his teeth.

Little Arthur got away fairly well with Cynthia's Child. The Prince and Cincinnati, boy?" he asked his son. "Darned if I know, but she's out of Cynthia, and they call her Cynthia's Child," said the boy.

"Wangly, thought so," commented Art.

"Don't bother about the program," the boy interrupted him as he reached for his score card. "I can tell you all about it. Last race, one for dogs. Nothing in it but us and two of Bellman's colts, the Prince and the Pauper, black colts, half brothers by Windblown. Five others to start, but they're skates."

Halfway down the stretch the three were lapped on each other, Cynthia's Child with her head at the Prince's saddle, and the Pauper nosing along at little Arthur's boot.

"Bad, bad," muttered Arthur Wangly to himself. "He'd better come through there quick, or drop back. I know what any jock workin' for Bellman'd do."

He could not send his advice by telepathy, however, and little Arthur paid for his inexperience by being caught. Almost simultaneously Mul-laney swerved out from the rail with the Prince, and Neal carried the Pauper in, both colts jostling the filly. Little Arthur, realizing his danger too late, took back as fast as he could, but the filly lost her stride and wavered. She swung against the rail before the boy could catch her up.

When he had her straightened out again, the two colts were off ahead with the race won, and little Arthur had a badly bruised leg from a jam against the fence.

Tilda, reassured on finding little Arthur had broken no bones, rejoiced to learn he could not ride again for weeks, hoping the accident would mean the end of his riding. They found a taxi and took the youngster to a doctor, who dressed the wounded leg. Arthur rejoiced that little Arthur gave up his whole soul to lamenting the luck of his employer.

"He was counting on this filly to run good in the stakes," said the boy. "Mr. Morgan's not rich, and he needs a winner, bad. Means a lot to him, whether he wins or loses, and now she's hurt and shaken up so's she may not run the way she can. I won't get to ride for him, either, and he hasn't got anybody that knows her like I do."

Arthur Wangly turned these things over and over in his mind, and that evening left Tilda and the boy to entertain each other. He hunted up Piz Molone, and spent hours with the old trainer. Between anecdotes, he asked out a full supply of information.

Continued Tomorrow.

Oil in the Can

BY JONATHAN BROOK

"What is it?" he asked dully.

"What Mr. Bellman and his men have done," she said. "Look, here, read it in the paper. He's stolen that leasehold!"

He took the evening paper from her, and slowly read the story of the leasing of the ground by Bellman's company. Reference was made to a rumored lease purporting to have been signed years before, but this lease, if still in existence, was declared to be spurious.

"They can't take that away from us," she exclaimed, as he looked up from the paper. "It's robbery, that's all! We'll stop that!"

"Oh, I don't care much about it," he said vaguely. "Not with what else has happened. Look at this letter," and he handed it over with the air of one who hates to inflict pain.

"What's the matter, Art?" asked Tilda, as she took the envelope, "is it something about little Art?"

"He's run away."

The letter was from the superintendent of the military academy, who regretted to report that Arthur Wangly, Jr., had disappeared, leaving no word. He thought perhaps the lad was homesick and had simply taken leave informally with the intention of returning. Had he been home, and if so, would they please advise when he might be expected back at school?

"But he hasn't been here at all," gasped Tilda.

"No, and it says there they had a little misunderstanding," said Art. "Had to take him out of the cavalry and put him in the infantry division because an older boy who had belonged to the cavalry came back to school and claimed his old place. The kid objected to leaving the cavalry."

Detective agencies scoured the country, sending back many reports and more expensive accounts, but no hope of finding the boy. It was a slow and sick winter for Art and Tilda.

"But he must be somewhere," she would declare. "I know nothing could happen to him."

"That's right," Art assured her one day toward spring. "But you know, Tilda, I've been thinking. I ran away myself when I was the boy's age."

"And I ran away to the race tracks," he continued. "I was just wondering whether he would run away to the same place I did!"

"But he never knew anything about a horse when he ran away," Tilda objected, matter-of-factly even when grasping at straws.

"Neither did I," replied Art. "It is no use trying to conceal the fact that this story goes back to the place from which it started. Scene as they say on the stage: same as Act One. Fifteen years later. After wandering about in search of fortune all this time, the plot comes back to the old home to die."

Did Art Wangly desert Tilda, now that he was upon his old stamping ground again? Best he leave her to enjoy herself as best she could, while he went out to hunt up old cronies? He did not. He and Tilda, for the spring meeting was on at the old track, took seats together in the grandstand.

"Art, Art," exclaimed Tilda, "look, look, quick. There's little Art!"

No," said Art, rubbing his eyes and staring hard, "that's not him, but me."

A tiny fellow with a black haired, bullet head, uncumbered by cap, and sharp little nose between sharp brown eyes, was hobbling along the course on a tiny bay filly. The races had not started, and he was dressed in overalls and sweater, warming up the filly.

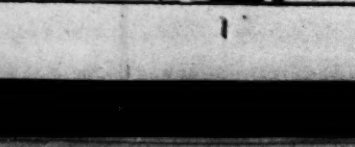

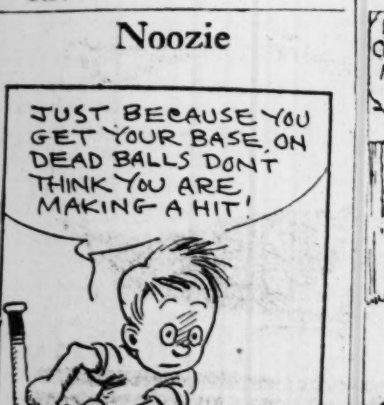

"And she's oil in the can," Art said, half to himself. "Look at her pick up those feet and sling 'em."

"It's little Art down there, Arthur," screamed Tilda, grasping her husband's arm and turning to him with tears streaming down her cheeks. "Let's go down and get him."

"If that ain't me and little Cynthia, fifteen years ago, I'll eat the pair of 'em," declared Art Wangly, dragging reluctant feet out of the grandstand in Tilda's wake, while the boy and filly were still in sight. "We can find him as soon as he gets back to the barn," he complained, loath to leave while he could still watch the boy ride and the filly run.

They held a dozen reunions with the youngster after finding him in a small stall in a small barn on the other side of the track. Little Art

THREE MERCER SUMMER SCHOOLS OPEN ON MONDAY

Macon, Ga., June 16.—Mercer university was the scene of several hundred students today, as the annual Mercer summer school and the Georgia Institute for Women both opened their doors this morning, and the school for Boy Scout executives also began its third annual session. By the latter part of the week 800 students will be enrolled in the three schools.

Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, president of Mercer, was principal speaker at the opening chapel exercises this morning. He welcomed chiefly on objects of the institute for women, which is being held under auspices of the social organizations of the state for advancement of conditions under which children are being reared.

At the session held last year on the Mercer campus, more than 200 women attended, and unanimously voted that a second training school be held this summer. Widely known educators are to lecture and offer courses under the auspices of the state federation.

Governor Clifford Walker, Dr. N. H. Ballard, state superintendent of schools; Bishop H. J. Mikel, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Helen Topping Miller, of Macon, nationally known short-story writer, are among the faculty members of the institute faculty.

Religious education, work of the Parent-Teacher associations, Boy Scouts, and Y. W. C. A. studies in sociology, public education, playground and community life, public health, family and child welfare, nutrition, and adolescent psychology, are among the courses listed.

College credit and certificates are to be given to those who complete the prescribed courses of the institute.

MAN PAYS DEBT OF GRATITUDE WITH OWN BLOOD

Macon, Ga., June 16.—When Robert M. Gamble, former Mercer student, went on the operating table at a local hospital this afternoon and allowed a pint of blood to be transfused from his veins to those of Mrs. R. R. Collins, he was repaying a debt which could be saved only by a blood transfusion operation. Miss Annie Louise Champion, trained nurse, now Mrs. Collins, was credited with saving Gamble's life when he was suffering from typhoid fever while he was a high school senior eight years ago.

He learned today that she was at the point of death, and that doctors said she could be saved only by a blood transfusion operation. Gamble responded. Mrs. Collins, although still in a critical condition, will recover, doctors believe.

SANDERSVILLE FIRE DAMAGE IS $25,000.

Sandersville, Ga., June 16.—(Special.)—A check of the total damage from Sunday morning's fire here shows that the total will amount to more than $25,000. There was practically no insurance on any of the buildings. Cause of the fire, which broke out shortly after midnight on the corner of the C. G. Rawlings' building at the same location.

Other buildings destroyed were the garage and supply station of B. M. Massey and the pressing club of Nathan Veal. Hancock notes that the fire department prevented spread of the flames to the Stanton hotel, several doors away.

The total loss suffered by Rawlings, who lost several automobiles, was $19,000, of which B. H. Massey, which included stock and fixtures, two automobiles, and a truck, $3,000; while R. Lee Smith, whose automobile and racing car were burned, $2,000; and W. A. Wray, Jr., president of the Citizens bank, suffered two days previously. Nathan Veal saved practically all equipment from his pressing shop.

FACULTY MEMBERS NAMED BY BOARD IN BIBB COUNTY

Macon, Ga., June 16.—Faculty members of Lanier high school, the new Bibb County Boys' High school, and public schools of the county were elected today at a special meeting of the Bibb county board of public education called for the purpose. Choice of the high school teaching staffs is the first made since the boys and girls have been separated in the secondary grades.

Professor Walter P. Jones, who has served several years as principal of Lanier high school, was elected to the supervision of both the girls' and boys' schools. Major Paul R. Anderson, of the Lanier faculty, was elected principal of the boys' school, and Dr. H. H. McCall, of the girls' school, was elected principal of Lanier. Women of Bibb county, through their civic and patriotic organizations, have successfully conducted the fight which ended in the separation of the sexes.

The new school for boys is now under construction, and will be completed, contractors say, in time for regular opening of the fall term. Changes were made in the lists of instructors in the grammar and high schools, in many cases faculties of 1923-24 being wholly retained.
